JAPANESE BOAT SAID TO HAVE BEEN PIRATED

BRITISH WARSHIPS ALLEGED TO HAVE GONE TO RESCUE

LOCAL NAVAL AUTHORITIES DENY REPORTS

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The Japanese vessel Kamuril Maru, 2175 tons, was pirated off Bias Bay on Thursday while bound for Japan from Hong Kong, according to a semi-official Japanese report.

It adds that British warships had gone to the rescue while the Navy Office in Tokyo has instructed the Commander-in-Chief in Chinese waters to take appropriate action.

REPORTS UNTRUE
Shanghai, Later.
It is learned that the reports concerning the piracy of the Japanese steamer Kamuril Maru are untrue.

The report arose from the fact that the steamer, Dell Maru, and not the Kamuril Maru, was overdue. She has now, however, arrived in Swatow.—Reuter.

CHINESE BUDGET DEFICIT

$140,000,000 For Last Fiscal Year

Nanking, Yesterday.
Chinese press reports state that in view of the fact that the actual expenditure of the Chinese Government for the last fiscal year exceeded the estimates by over $140,000,000, a special effort will henceforth be made by the various Government organizations to keep within the Budget.—Reuter.

HEALTH CONTEST IN CANTON

Large Entry Includes Man Of 101

Canton, To-day. — The aged persons in the city have shown interest in the third octogenarian health contest to be held next Friday under the auspices of the Municipal Government. Up to date, 186 registered to participate in the contest. The oldest is Mr. Tong Tow-ying, aged 101.—Central Press.

MILITARY SECRETS ARE BETRAYED

DEATH PENALTY IN GERMANY

HITLER DECLINES TO PARDON SENTENCED MEN

Berlin, Yesterday.
Two men who were sentenced to death by the People's Court last year for the betrayal of military secrets were beheaded to-day. Reichsfuehrer Hitler, who alone has the right of pardon, did not exercise his prerogative.

The men executed were Kurt Boehm, of Ludwigshafen and Paul Merz, of Stuttgart, who were sentenced on August 9 and October 16, respectively.

This is the first time since the establishment of the People's Court that the names of those executed for betrayal of military secrets have been published, although there have been several laconic announcements of executions. — Reuter.

JAPANESE INFLUENCE IN NANKING

Persistent Rumours Of Agreement

CANTON CLOSELY WATCHING DEVELOPMENTS

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, Yesterday.

Further reports of a rapprochement between China and Japan were received here last night. The three principal conditions are (1) that China shall recognize Manchukuo, (2) that China shall retire from the League of Nations, and (3) that China and Japan shall enter into a non-aggression pact.

These terms are under the consideration of the Nanking authorities. General Huang Fu, Chairman of the Peiping Political Affairs Readjustment Committee, recommends the acceptance of the foregoing proposals before he will return to Peiping. On the other hand, it is stated that Mr. Wang Chup-tong, pro-Japanese politician, will replace General Huang at Peiping.

Mr. Wang Keh-ming, another politician well-known for his friendship for Japan, will be appointed (Continued on Page 18)

ANNA FISCH'S EVIDENCE

STATES ISADORE RETURNED HOME WITH ONLY $500

UNPACKED FOR HIM

HAUPTMANN CASE MAY GO TO JURY ON TUESDAY

An enterprising Flemington, N.J., restaurateur displays his menu featuring dishes named after principals in the Hauptmann murder trial.

Flemington, N.J., Yesterday.

After the closing of the defence in the Hauptmann trial yesterday, the prosecution called witnesses in rebuttal of the case for the defence. These witnesses impugned Hauptmann's alibi on the night of the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, and the suggestion that the crime was committed by Isadore Fisch.

The court adjourned till to-day, when the remainder of the 22 rebuttal witnesses are expected to be heard.

A later message states that the most striking witness produced by the prosecution to rebut the defence evidence was Anna Fisch, sister of Isadore Fisch.

Anna Fisch bore witness that Isadore, who, the defence alleged, returned to Germany after the kidnapping with the ransom money, arrived with only $500.

She stated that she unpacked as he was too weak. His baggage consisted of two suits, a few shirts and collars, and a bathrobe.

Mr. Edward Reilly, vainly sought to shake the witness. It is believed the case will go to the jury on Tuesday next. — Reuter.

WELL-KEPT SECRET

REVEALED AFTER 30 YEARS

Kreisler's Imitations Of Ancient Music

New York, Yesterday.

The revelation that a long series of violin compositions, attributed in musical catalogues to such old masters as Vivaldi, Porpora, Pugnani, Martini and Couperin, are his own work has been made by Fritz Kreisler, the famous violinist.

This 30-year-old secret was only discovered, when a research student sought to unearth the original manuscripts of pieces attributed to Pugnani.

Kreisler explained that necessity forced this course upon him when, desirous of enlarging his programmes, he found it inexpedient and tactless to repeat his name endlessly on programmes.

Kreisler's publisher and other friends state that his colleagues would not have been eager in those days to play the work of a rival and coming virtuoso. (Continued on Page 18)

H.M.S. Australia Rushes To Rescue In Pacific

New York, Yesterday.

H.M.S. Australia, with the Duke of Gloucester aboard, is proceeding to the assistance of the three-masted schooner Seth Parker, which is in danger of capsizing 300 miles to the north of Tahiti.

The Seth Parker, captained by the actor and wireless entertainer Philip Lord, left Portland, Oregon, in December on a world cruise.

H.M.S. Australia sailed for Honolulu yesterday from Samoa.—Reuter.

RUBBER EXCHANGE ACTION

Non-Member Posted

London, Yesterday.
Messrs. James Shakespeare and J. F. Adair have been posted on the Rubber Exchange. The market remained open till 1 a.m. in order to fix settlement prices.

The Adairs are the brokers who were reported to have bought pepper on behalf of James Shakespeare.

The posting of James Shakespeare is unusual as the firm is not a member of the Rubber Exchange. — Reuter.

WEATHER FORECAST

The anticyclone has now divided into two parts, one centre of high pressure being situated over Japan and the other over north China. A shallow depression is situated about 150 miles east of Shanghai; moving north-east. Pressure is also low over Manchuria. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was east winds, moderate; cloudy, with occasional drizzle.

F. I. Zimmern, the K.C.C. and Interport batsman, is here seen hitting the University bowling during his innings of 40 yesterday. He and E. F. Fincher (48) added 90 for the third wicket (King's Studio).

ENGLAND BEAT IRELAND AT TWICKENHAM

THREE PENALTIES IN SECOND HALF DECIDES ISSUE

London, Yesterday.
A crowd of 50,000 saw the England fifteen beat their Irish visitors by 14 points to 3 in the Rugby International Championship at Twickenham to-day in sunny, though chilly weather.

This represented England's fourth consecutive success over Ireland and her first triumph in this season's series.

MALARIA RAVAGES IN CEYLON

DEATHS ESTIMATED AT 30,000 TO DATE

Colombo, Yesterday.
It is estimated that at least 30,000 people have died during the malaria epidemic in Ceylon 6,000 of whom were from the Central Province.

In order to ensure the proper distribution of relief, convalescent homes throughout Ceylon are to be taken under Government control.—Reuter.

ITALY AND THE AIR CONVENTION

RESERVATION ONLY WITH BRITAIN

Paris, Yesterday.

Italy is making no reservations with regard to Franco-Italian aerial reciprocity in the proposed air convention, according to a telegram from Rome. Her reservation relates only to Britain.—Reuter.

A later cable from Rome states that an official communiqué says that Italy's position in regard to the proposed air convention will shortly be settled on the lines of the agreement principle, taking into account Italy's special situation with regard to Great Britain and vice-versa.—Reuter.

"GOLD CLAUSE" DECISION AGAIN DELAYED

Washington, Yesterday.
The possibility that the Supreme Court's decision on the "Gold Clause" would be known to-day vanished with the adjournment of the Court till Monday. — Reuter.

Art Collectors For China

London, Yesterday.

Mr. George Eumorphopoulos and Mr. R. L. Hobson, Keeper of the Department of Oriental Antiquities in the British Museum, are leaving for China to-day to assist the Chinese Government in selecting exhibits for the forthcoming Exhibition of Chinese Art at Burlington House. They are sailing from Trieste by the s.s. Gange on Wednesday.—Reuter.

Mr. George Eumorphopoulos, who is the Vice-President of the firm of Ralli Brothers, recently sold his collection of Chinese ceramics and other works of art, considered to be the finest private collection in the world, to the British Government for $100,000, a price much below its real value.

HAWAIIAN SITE

$90,000,000 GRANT FOR NEW COASTAL DEFENCES PROPOSED

ONLY "DEFENSIVE PURPOSES"

$90,000,000 FOR 800 ARMoured PLANES

Washington, Yesterday.

It is revealed that a proposal for the construction of a U.S.$11,000,000 air base at Hawaii and also an expenditure of U.S.$2,000,000 for the strengthening of coastal defences, including guns, at Hawaii, Alaska, and elsewhere were discussed at a meeting between the army High Command, headed by General Douglas MacArthur, and the House of Representatives' Military Committee.

The chairman of the Committee, Mr. John J. McSwain, emphasised that any action taken would be for "defensive purposes," adding that the proposals implied nothing.

General MacArthur recommended the purchase of 800 armoured aeroplanes, costing U.S.$90,000,000, in order to give the army an aerial armada of 2,320 modern aircraft as recommended by the War Department committee on July 22 last year.—Reuter.

DR. SVEN HEDIN RETURNS

Trail Blazed From The Yellow Sea To Chinese Turkestan

Nanking, Yesterday.

Dr. Sven Hedin with six members of his party arrived at Nanking from Lanchow yesterday, according to a message received this morning. The party is coming to Nanking to report to the Government.—Reuter.

Dr. Sven Hedin is returning from a trip through the heart of Asia, made at the request of the Chinese Government, blazing a trail from the Yellow Sea to Chinese Turkestan.

During his journey to Turkestan Dr. Hedin and his companions, who were working in small parties, had many adventures, being at one time taken prisoner by rebels and narrowly escaping being murdered.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN

Regulations Rouse Ire Of Labour Party

London, Yesterday.

The Trade Union movement and the Labour Party are dissatisfied with the recent "standstill" order issued to the Unemployment Assistance Board with regard to regulations and the means test, and are organising demonstrations throughout the country in favour of a drastic revision of the regulations, the general effect of which, it is asserted, is to "inflate to its maximum the income taken into account and to reduce to a minimum the amount of assistance paid to applicants." — Reuter.

SHORT STORY.

CORRECT KIT

By LORD DUNSANY

OURS is a small club; but one day, with some idea of the committee that we should make ourselves a little more important, we unfortunately arranged a big dinner. White ties, speeches and all the rest of it. At least that was, the idea of the committee.

White ties we actually had, but the speeches never came off, for in the end we sat listening instead of one of those tales of Jorkens. He, looking around at us all in our starched shirts, had suddenly said: "It reminds me of a cannibal feast I once attended in Africa."

Everyone laughed at that, including me, though I saw no particular point in it, and then Terbut said: "Not quite so many white ties I should imagine."

And we all laughed with Terbut. When the laughter was over, and Terbut was still smiling quietly to himself, Jorkens began his story.

"Up the Nile, did it lose its name and becomes the White Nile, and into Lake No, and out of that into the Bahr el Gazel, I went once about as far as the Bahr el Arab. I had left the Sahara Desert far behind me, I had left that little piece of English civilisation that has been transplanted in Khartoum, and a few hundred miles of the White Nile, and a lake like a melted opal, and the papyrus swamps, and had come to firm ground at last, and the scarlet trunks of trees, and mimosa with its small round yellow flowers shining in the sun, as the sun itself might shine on the planet Neptune.

"When I saw all this good firm land I decided to leave my dahabeah and go South for a couple of days. In order to stretch my legs as much as anything, and in the hope of getting a couple of pairs of tusks, which would about pay for my trip if they were big enough. And all the elephant tracks I had seen seemed to be leading south.

"So I took two men and a couple of donkeys and a light camping outfit, and I travelled South for two days without seeing an elephant. On the morning of the third day I was walking along with one Arab, who was carrying my double 470, about a mile from my camp. I was still in the Dinka country, a people I knew quite well, who always struck me as harmless; naked except for grey ash they rubbed into their skins, a blue necklace, and a feather in their hair: the grey ash was to keep off mosquitoes.

"I was walking along with this Arab, when suddenly I saw to the right and left a number of men with spears who were hurrying away in front of me. Strange though they were to me (and what is strange out there is usually dangerous) they seemed in such a hurry at first to get out of my way, that I let valuable seconds go by before I reached for my rifle, not that I could have done anything against over eighty of them; and, before I could say knife, the two lots met about a hundred yards in front of me, and looking back I saw that I was completely surrounded. Eighty-five men with spears, of a tribe that I did not know, and every one of them in evening dress.

"You mean," said one of us, "they were a bit décolletés."

"No," said Jorkens. "Evening dress."

Then "What kind of evening dress does a savage wear?" said Terbut.

"White ties, white waistcoats," said Jorkens, quietly. "In fact just what you are wearing now, except that they had rather heavier watch-chains, and they all wore diamond collarettes.

"It was no good shooting; they were all round me. I gave up my rifle to the first man that came for it; it looked odd in his hands against his evening dress. Of course I did a good deal of thinking; and the first thing I thought was that I need hardly expect the worst, because, however nasty the spears looked, anything like cannibalism was impossible in decent evening dress, such as they were all wearing. I was wrong there.

"I saw they weren't Dinkas, but they'd come into Dinka country, and I wondered if they knew the Dinka language. I tried it and they did.

"They were taking me to their camp, where we soon arrived: as I know we should, for their evening dress was so neat and tidy that it could not have been long put on. And it had not been often put on; one could see that too. Then why had it been put on now? Obviously for some ceremonial occasion. But what?

"There was no long any doubt of the occasion when we came to the middle of their camp. There hung a cauldron that would have held two pigs. A fire was already burning underneath it; and others, also in evening dress, were adding buckets of water to the cauldron as the water that was already in it boiled. I saw then what was prepared for me; it was nothing less than boiling.

"I don't know that boiling is really any worse than roasting; but somehow we seem to be more familiar with roasting; we are taught about roasting when we are young, when first we are told of Hell, and, knocking about the world as I have done and getting warned now and then, by people who seem to know, that one is getting nearer to it, one is more inclined to face roasting. But boiling seems to me still an idea one could never get used to.

"And now I noticed they were all straightening their ties, and I saw that I must do something pretty quick, or I should be boiled whether I fancied it or not. Well, I talked to their chief man then, in Dinka talk that they knew through trading with Dinkas. What was the cauldron for? For I pretended not to know. But that was no good. Then I asked him if he didn't know that eating men was wrong, and that the white man punished people that ate men.

"Ah, the white man. Great men," he said.

"He teaches you not to eat men," I answered.

"White man can do no wrong," he said.

"Well, sometimes perhaps, just now and then, but not often," I said. For I thought I was getting along swimmingly.

"Not when he is in evening dress," said the savage.

"Do you know, in about five minutes then I got his horrible point of view. The white man, he explained, was often angry, often hasty, often wrong; but in this ceremonial kit, his evening dress, he could not err! I suppose we have a few tenets of that kind, but, suddenly hearing it like that, it seemed to me perfectly frightful.

They had got this kit from a trader who had sold the suits to them for gold and ivory. They knew it was the white man's most important dress, and they had the perfectly horrible idea that it sanctified anything. That was why they had put it on.

"Now what chance had I? The boiling water was deep in the cauldron, and they were dancing round it already with their heavy gold watch chains flapping. It was no good saying any more against cannibalism; it was clearly one of those things that are wrong without a ceremony, but that a ceremony makes all right.

"Never at any moment of my life did I feel less like laughter than then. But I burst out laughing. I don't like interfering with any man's faith, especially his faith in a white man. But I burst out laughing and pointed at the white ties that these men had bought from the trader.

"You laugh?" said their chief man simply.

"Yes," I said, "at those ties."

And I pretended to try to stop my laughter, and laughed again.

"Not correct evening dress?" he asked quickly, like a bride being married in a church that isn't properly licensed.

"No, no, no," I said.

"What wrong?" he asked.

"Why, those ties," I said, "they should go on the shoes, and the bows that you wear on your shoes should go on your collars." And I began laughing again.

"He hesitated, and I suddenly remembered a tiresome photograph of a group at a dinner that I had attended in London: the photographer had come round afterwards and got signatures from us, ordering a copy, just at that time of the evening when one isn't so sure what one's signing; and the damned photograph had reached me at Khartoum, of all places, and I had stuffed it into a pocket in my tent. I suddenly remembered it now; and we had all been wearing black ties. Of course our feet weren't showing."

Honey As An Energy Builder

Comparisons Show
Calorific Value
To Be High

ACCORDING to a diet expert the calorific value of honey is high. One pound of honey has about the calorific value of 30 eggs; 6 pints of milk; 3lb. of plums, 10lb. of green peas; 12lb. of apples; or 20lb. of carrots.

The energy value is 1,485 calories per lb., and a calorie is the unit of heat required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade. This exceeds the calorific contents of every other food but dates, being far ahead of meat, eggs, bread, milk, or vegetables.

Economical Dish

Basing food value upon the amount of energy in calories, and taking average prices into consideration, honey is a more economical food than pears, oranges, figs, bananas, strawberries, and grapes, all foods in the same class of energy producers. Of foods in other classes, honey is more economical as an energy producer than celery, tomatoes, and all the meats, with the possible exception of pork chops. These comparisons are from studies and tables from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Winter Sports Hat

Dark Brown Corduroy Velvet Trousers

THE new winter sports hat advised by Marcel Rochas smacks somewhat of an exaggerated postman's helmet. It looks snug and comfortable, with fairly high crown and wide peak squared at the tip, and jutting well forward over the eyes. A becoming style, particularly in black to match muffler and gloves for wear with a sand beige corduroy velveteen ski-ing outfit. Plain navy blue, too, looks excellent with a dark and light blue fancy tweed mixture suit. The jacket, of Norfolk persuasion, is given a striking dash of colour through a scarlet flannel lining which tones exactly with a yoke surmounting a plain navy blue tuck-in blouse.

A happy contrast from another dictator on sports wear over here is dark brown corduroy velvet trousers and mustard-yellow antelope double-breasted jackets or wind-breakers. The latter garments also show off well next this warm tone of brown velvet when made from orange naturalism-coloured kid, oyster-white kid, or yellow chamolais leather.

Spring Skirts To Be Shorter

FLOWING GARMENTS OUT

HAVING lived to see the day when a woman in a short skirt looks positively dowdy, men must prepare their eyes for another shock. This spring, the fashion experts say, skirts will be shorter. Women will still dress in the height of discretion, but the height of discretion will be raised a few inches. By this time next year the flowing garments that now look so smart may be worn only by aunts. When this see-saw process has been repeated a few times more the whole human race will be shocked. And what will the modists do then, poor thing?

PEARLY NAILS FOR "SUB-DEBS"

NAIL lacquers with a pearly finish are just right for the "sub-deb." If your nails are not all that can be desired, have them cut fairly short and bring the lacquer right down to the edge and over the half-moon. This method of varnishing covers many imperfections. A nail paste for whitening and cleansing soiled nails that looks like a tube of toothpaste is a most useful manicure accessory.

A little hand lotion should be patted on the arms and neck as well as on the hands, and the skin should be given a light dusting with the same powder as you use for your face.

THE LATEST HEADGEAR

THE tilt over one eye, very rakish and becoming will be a popular hat note again this spring. Some models are completely unadorned, save for the small pheasant's feather in the centre.

Plaid Woollens For Spring Hats

They Give Youthful Effect

PLAID woollens are being used for a good many of the spring hats, with the turned-back cuff brims faced with a solid colour. There are a dozen other variations of this shape, but all do very much the same—they give a more youthful effect than most of the toques we have been wearing recently.

There are, however, a number of sensible women who will say, in reply to that statement, "Thanks very much, I don't particularly want to look youthful. I am not a

THE INDOOR COAT

THERE are many types of woolen frocks to select from, and the coat or cape that matches the dress should be possible to wear in the house, as the very warm furs or full-lined wraps can be left in the hall at winter tea and cocktail parties.

It is not everyone who is equipped with such new and lovely furs that they wish them to be seen. That is why the woollen or even velvet dress is best when complete in itself. Also, most houses to-day are too hot for much fur. The afternoon dress is all-important in winter-time. Often it is worn from four till 12 p.m.

FASHION need not be monotonous. In former days, once we had secured our autumn wardrobe, we were more or less content to go on with it till spring. Not so now! Each month, almost each week, we have something novel in the dress world. It may be a colour, a fabric or merely a new way of tying a scarf or adjusting a collar or cuff. That is where the accessories of fashion are so helpful, without being extravagant, we can achieve pleasing variety.

BLACK TULLE FOR THE YOUNGER SET

GIRLS WEAR TULLE BRACELETS

IT is astonishing to find that the younger generation seems to have a mania for the tulle frock—and to choose black tulle in preference to a colour. On a slender figure nothing is prettier, of course, and the way in which tulle is treated this season makes for grace and charm. There is little frilliness about it. Straight lengths are arranged over a silk or a satin foundation for the skirt, which is broken at the knee line by the ruffled or gathered heading of a long, straight blouse. The little bodice is quite frequently of satin, or even of ring velvet, and there is a tulle capelet with long scarf ends which may be allowed to float or be twisted about the throat as the wearer prefers.

Some girls wear tulle bracelets with tiny butterfly bows to match on either wrist, and have tulle bows on their satin slippers.

SOUTH CHINA VERY LUCKY TO BEAT NEW NAVY TEAM

C.B.S. COLLAPSE AFTER PROMISING START TO GAME

Miss Lakeman Misses Penalty Bully

MISS FOWLER SCORES THREE TIMES FOR Y.M.C.A.

After leading by one goal to all at half time the Central British School collapsed, the Y.M.C.A. ladies winning by 4 goals to 1 in their Caer Clark Cup hockey encounter at King's Park yesterday.

A feature of the game was the outstanding improvement in the combination of the school's team. They played an excellent game in the first half, but, with the exception of a few individual attempts, did nothing in the second half.

Miss Peggy Stringer, their left-wing, gave a magnificent display taking the ball down the wing with remarkable accuracy, while her well-placed centres always went to the stick of one of her forwards. In the second half she was the only forward to press, but was unable to achieve results owing to lack of support.

Miss Fowler Shines

Another feature of the game was the impressive display by Miss A. Fowler, who was seen in the inside-left position for the "Y" during the second half, and who scored three well-placed goals. She played a very aggressive game, and when in the circle gave the opposing goalkeeper very little chance. She was very well supported by Miss O. Brown, the Colony left-winger, who sent across several good centres. (Continued on Page 15)

SAINTS PLAY SHORT BUT FORCE DRAW

C.B.A. LEAD AT INTERVAL

CAER CLARK CUP THRILLS

Good defensive play by both teams featured the rather scrappy Caer Clark Cup hockey match between St. Andrew's Ladies and the Central British Association at King's Park yesterday resulting in a one-all draw after the C.B.A. team had led at the conclusion of the first half.

The Saints are now on level terms with the Hong Kong Ladies, the champions, and as both are expected to win their remaining two matches. It is very probable that there will have to play-off for the title.

Playing one short, Mrs. Ross, the Colony custodian failing to put in an appearance, the St. Andrew's team did very well to force a draw with their eager opponents.

The outstanding feature of the match was the clever combination of the C.B.A. backs, Miss Walker and Miss P. Woolley. They had plenty of work to do in stopping the attacks of the Saints' forwards and not once did they falter in the first half, leaving very little for Miss Best to do in goal.

Miss Bryson Holds Side

Miss M. Bryson, the Colony left-half, was the mainstay of the line and led her forwards with several neat and accurate passes. Miss Beavis, at centre-half, played a hard game but was no match for M. Woolley, the Colony centre-forward. M. Woolley gave a very disappointing account of herself at centre-forward, and was unable to combine with the other forwards.

CLUB BEAT COMBINED SERVICES AT RUGBY

EVANS OUTSTANDING IN SCRAPPY GAME

HUTCHISON'S DROPPED GOAL

A VERY poor game of rugby, with flashes of good individual play, was witnessed when the Combined Services clashed with the Club yesterday at Sookunpoo, resulting in a win for the Club by a goal, a dropped goal, and two tries (15 points) to two tries (6 points).

The Club side appeared to be stale, and, with one or two exceptions, were very poor, the forwards giving an uninspiring display.

The feature of the game was the brilliant display of Evans, the Services' stand-off-half, who played a great defensive game in addition to being one of their most dangerous attackers.

He was very fast off the mark and reminded one of Benson, the Navy centre-three-quarter, when on the run, his swerve and side-step often catching the Club backs on the wrong foot.

CORNWALL SECURE FIRST MAMAK POINTS

Fatal R.A.S.C. Changes In Second Half

HALLOWELL AND MILL OUTSTANDING

H.M.S. Cornwall recorded their first victory in the Mamak Hockey Tournament yesterday when they defeated the Royal Army Service Corps by 3 goals to 1 at Happy Valley.

Both teams turned out in similar colours, which handicapped the players throughout the game.

The Corps deserved a better fate as they were undoubtedly the superior team. On many occasions they were on the point of scoring.

MAMAK HOCKEY CLASH

There is only one Mamak hockey encounter for to-day, the Royal Army Service Corps and the St. Andrew's Club meeting on the Marina ground at 8 p.m.

L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock, the Colony Mixed Doubles lawn tennis champions.

GOLDMAN AND MISS HANCOCK WIN EASILY

Open Mixed Doubles Tennis Title

RUMJAHN AND MRS. CHIU OUTCLASSED

L. Goldman and Miss R. Hancock, the U.S.R.C. pair, won the Colony Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis championship yesterday when they beat H. D. Rumjahn and Mrs. Chiu Chan-Chiu by 6-3, 6-2 at the Chinese Recreation Club.

Goldman and Miss Hancock displayed a better understanding than their opponents, who continually got in each other's way and consequently lost many valuable points.

Goldman and Miss Hancock started off very well and played good tennis, the former being very effective at the net, though tolerably weak overhead, sending several ony kills into the net.

Miss Hancock started rather shakily, but soon settled down. Her underhand spin service kept the ball very low, but it provided no obstacle to Rumjahn who returned a powerful forehand drive, which unfavourably scored.

Mrs. Chiu Erratic

Rumjahn was faulty in his serving at the commencement, but improved as the game progressed. He received very poor support from Mrs. Chiu, who first of all drove all her balls out of the court and later over-lobbed with disastrous results. Miss Hancock making the openings for Goldman to go to the net for the "kill".

Goldman and Miss Hancock took the first four games in the first set comfortably, but Goldman lost his second service game with a series of net-faults. Rumjahn won his second service and Miss Hancock double-faulted twice in her service game and she and her partner were unable to recover.

With the scores standing at 4-3 in favour of Goldman and Miss Hancock, Mrs. Chiu became erratic in her driving and Goldman and his partner easily ran out winners, taking the next two games without opposition.

Goldman and Miss Hancock started the second set disastrously, losing the first three points in Goldman's opening service game, but a brilliant recovery gave them the game and the next three.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM TOUR

Local Champions At Swatow

The Mul Fong Girls' School's basketball team, local champions, comprising 12 members, left the Colony on Friday by the S.S. Kwangtung for Swatow, where a series of games has been arranged for them. They are expected to stay there a week before returning to Hong Kong.

The team, led by Mr. Chung Chi-keung, physical director of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and the Misses Yee Mok-cheuk and Lo Yuet-ho, is comprised of Misses Ip Mel-ching, Ip Mel-lan, Lam Hang-yuk, Chan Fung-kam, Chan Chai-chan, Tam Chung-yau, Young Sul-ching, Chan Fal-hing and Lam Siu-ping.

LEE TIN-SANG HERO OF ENCOUNTER

GRAY DASHING LEADER

SOUTH China "A" completed the "hat-trick, and retained their undefeated record yesterday when they beat the Navy in their First Division soccer encounter at Caroline Hill by the odd goal in three, but they were extremely lucky to do so. The Navy enjoyed the major portion of the game and had it not been for the excellent defence set up by Lee Tin Sang the sailors would have won by a decisive margin.

The Navy fielded practically a new eleven, only two members of yesterday's team were in the original eleven, Skinner and Kiley. A new team has been found, and, if yesterday's exhibition is a fair pointer of things to come, then the Navy should climb a good distance from their present lowly position in the league table.

The greatest find is Moss, undoubtedly the finest left-back the Navy have had for some years. Moss was very cool, robbed with apparent ease, and cleared strongly, his clearances always going to an unmarked man. Another excellent acquisition is Gray. Yesterday he played a perfect centre-forward's game and was very unlucky in not scoring. After his prowess in the first half he was given very little scope in the second, Lee Tin Sang shadowing him throughout. Gray gave clever dribbling displays and showed himself to be very tricky, he dribbled through and around the defence frequently but was always hampered and eventually robbed by Lee.

Goodrich played excellently at left-half; he was very good in defensive work, whilst his passing left nothing to be desired.

The Navy forwards were very good, far better than have been for very many matches, the outstanding players being Skinner and Kiley. Skinner played a great game—he centred beautifully and tied Leung in Chan up in knots. Kiley figured well at outside-right during the first half, but, owing to Roberts sustaining an arm injury, he came in to the inside position for the second half, in both of which positions he made himself keenly felt, never hesitating to send the ball into the middle.

Speaking generally, the Navy were par excellence, but were unfortunate in not being able to net the winning goals.

Wong Wing Absent

South China "A" without the services of Wong Wing, who injured his foot in the match against Shanghai last Tuesday. Tang Yat Ming filled the vacancy and gave a good account of himself, although he was greatly assisted by Li Tin Sang who allowed little to pass by him. Lau Mau supported Li very well but was not so sure, kicking wildly at times and conceding corners unnecessarily.

Ip Pak-wa and Li Tin-sang were the star men of the Chinese side and Goodrich had his work cut out to hold the former.

The Navy were somewhat slow in settling down, the Chinese having all their own way for the first 10 minutes or so. From the kick off the Chinese rushed through, forcing Hughes to concede a corner, from which Fung had hard luck with a header which went over the top.

Goal From Free Kick

The first goal was scored about five minutes from the commencement, Leung Wing Chui taking a free kick awarded just outside the area against Moss to score with a great drive which hit the far corner well beyond Crocker's reach.

Tam then made an excellent attempt which went over the top from about 25 yards. The Navy, however, rallied and Skinner took the ball down the wing to send in a fast low drive goalwards, but Li cleared with a first-time kick. Skinner again took possession, a lovely drop shot from the left wing landing on top of the net. From the kick out Gray gained possession and the Navy had hard luck when, after dribbling around Li, he shot too hurriedly, the ball going wide.

Taking playing to other end Wong Mee Shun centred for Fung to drive goalwards from about three yards, Crocker making a great save by diving full length to push the ball out to Moss who cleared to Roberts, the latter sending in an angle shot which hit the bar.

Navy Equalise

The Navy equalised just before half time when Kiley centred to Gray who secured a corner off Li. Kiley took the kick and lobbed the

CLUB'S DEFENCE HOLD LINCOLNS IN FAST GAME

Rodger And Strange Outstanding

SECOND-HALF RALLY GAINS POINT

Before a moderate attendance on the Club ground yesterday, the Club and the Lincolns shared the points in their First Division League encounter, each team scoring twice. The game throughout was fast and interesting, and the result was a fair indication of the run of the play.

The Club defence undoubtedly saved the side a point by their magnificent efforts during the first half, when the Lincolns over-ran them.

Rodger made many brilliant saves, and was always on the spot to deal with a dangerous shot. The two occasions on which he was beaten were with shots which no goal-keeper would have stopped.

Sid Strange did even more than Rodger to keep the score down, and by his fearless tackling and quick interceptions, saved two or three almost certain goals. He had good support from Gumble, who cleared and tackled quickly and soundly throughout a gruelling game.

Skinner's Good Display

Skinner was the pick of the halves, especially during the second half, when he held Ridley and Malpas, and distributed splendid passes to Howo and Bickford. (Continued on Page 15)

RECREIO MISS TWO PENALTIES AND FUSILIERS WIN

Inspired Display By Rowlands

SUDDEN RECOVERY RESULTS IN FOUR GOALS

The Fusiliers yesterday gave an insight into their former match-winning days, when they secured two much needed points at King's Park, in their First Division League encounter with the Recreio, winning 4 goals to 2.

Although the Fusiliers displayed brilliant all-round form when once they fell into their stride, the Recreio, however, enjoyed a considerable share of the game.

The fact that the latter failed to net on a great number of occasions was due undoubtedly, to the efforts of Rowlands, in the Fusiliers goal. Again and again Rowlands cleared shots which were apparent "certainties," dealing with each with coolness and precision. In addition—proof of really clever judgment and anticipation—he held two penalty shots, one of these from the redoubtable A. V. Gosano!

Sudden Change

For the first quarter of an hour, the Fusiliers played their usual football without any great sense of combination, and in consequence, the Recreio had a great deal of the play. After an appreciable interval, during which the Fusiliers

EAST LANCS BEAT KOWLOON

Speedy Forwards And Reliable Custodian

The East Lancs enjoyed a comfortable win over Kowloon by 4 goals to 1 when they met in their First Division League encounter on the Kowloon ground yesterday.

Gorman led the soldier forwards and scored two of the goals. His knowance and the support given him by his wingers, Swain and Tuloy, was mainly responsible for their notting three additional goals without reply from Kowloon.

The East Lancs half-backs too, were in good fettle and Thompson, their pivot, worked like a trojan throughout the encounter.

G. White Dangerous

Swain and Ratcliffe in the defence gave a creditable display, and successfully cleared several dangerous attacks by the Kowloon forwards.

G. White, the Kowloon centre-forward, proved himself dangerous in front of goal, sending in some brilliant shots. (Continued on Page 15)

ROUTINE SHOOTING IN RUSSIA

103 Executed After Kirov's Murder

Merely To Show Spirit Of Bolshevism Not Dead

HAS there been a "New Terror" in Moscow since Stalin's lieutenant, Kirov, was murdered in Leningrad by a young Communist on December 1?

If by "Terror" one means the summary execution of 103 persons having no conceivable connection with the crime (in addition, of course, to the actual murderer and his 13 friends), there has.

If, on the other hand, one means what we old Moscow hands mean by "Terror," namely, wholesale and indiscriminate arrests, night after night, by Chekists running wild in their Black Crows (Black Marias), as in 1927, as again in 1930, then there has been no new Terror.

Western Europeans—Englishmen in particular, I notice—find it hard to admit that 103 persons should have been shot without conspiracies, disorders, even civil war, or at the least, an urgently grave situation existing in Russia.

Why The Executions? That is not the case. There has not even been any perceptible change in the Kremlin's home policy since Kirov's murder. But why, then, these executions? If I can answer that question I shall have succeeded in explaining something of Bolshevik psychology.

Shooting is a more or less routine matter here. In the average week several are still shot for graft, theft of State or social property, sabotage, resistance to requisitions, or, on occasions, spying. Backed by the class-war pretext and the whole weight of "expert" political-police opinion, such a habit dies hard.

If, then, on an occasion like the present heavy shootings did not happen when a bullet, although fired 400 miles away, had whistled unpleasantly in Stalin's ear, that would cause surprise. Especially as the murder was committed right inside "Party circles."

An old Russian proverb says, "When the masters start fighting among themselves, 'tis the servants' hair that gets pulled." The real "masters" have not set to fighting, and stories that have been in circulation in London of revolver fights between the Red Army and the OGPU in revolt on the staircase of Cheka headquarters in Leningrad can be dismissed as untrue.

Zinoviev's Downfall

That weak old figure, Grigori Zinoviev-Apfelbaum, expelled from Moscow in "ideological" connections with this affair, was no longer a "master" but merely a craven minor official. As a "plotter" he is a bad joke; his name merely serves to link up Kirov's young murderer Nikolai and his 13 accomplices or associates with an unsavoury past, on the necessary theory that all evil has its roots in what is dying out, that evil cannot breed spontaneously in "the happy, living present."

None the less, the old proverb holds good. Whenever trouble breaks out inside the Party, the governing group's reflex is the same: "We may have our troubles, but we will stand no nonsense from Russian outsiders. We will show them we are, if need be, as ruthless as ever, and (after the OGPU's egregious failure to guard Kirov), above all, as vigilant."

Whether such measures are necessary for the conservation of the regime I do not pretend to guess. I have never known an occasion when they were not taken. I only know that they bring solace to many single-track Party minds. I must confess that this time I did not think they would be taken.

I argued, This time they will surely restrain themselves. I did not know—nobody then knew; the secret was well kept—of the suspected existence of a "murder plot" among young Communists.

Masses Appeased

"Fear has Wide Eyes." That is another proverb that the Slavs learned from Asia. Stalin's entourage is mainly Asiatic. But there was more to it this time than mere Asiatic fear, blindly raging, and fed by a "political police" with its prestige to re-establish.

All regimes are, I suppose, tooled to some extent in fictions or semi-fictions. Here, in this anciently stagnant community, the fiction or semi-fiction is that the Russian masses do take a passionately active interest in Bolshevik politicians as such. So, once again, the gods were deemed to be athirst and that thirst had to be slaked.

Kirov was generally liked in Leningrad, but was little known elsewhere except in upper Party circles. His murder found, and left, everything quiet—too quiet, the OGPU may have reported.

After two days' hesitation, a drive was launched to show Russia and the world that, even if the dictatorship did flirt with French bourgeois in Geneva, the Bolshevik spirit was not really dead.

A false and misty situation then developed, factories, offices and collective farms, under the guidance of the Party "cells," clamouring for the blood of a murderer whose identity, as a Young Communist, was stubbornly concealed for three whole weeks, during which mass indignation was first stimulated and then appeased by the sacrifice of 103 seemingly irrelevant persons.

Kirov's funeral processions were grandiose. Those overheard grumbling against having to march and wait in the bitter cold were apt to find themselves in gaol, or, in the case of students, expelled from the University. As a monster demonstration of State power it was certainly impressive.

Nobody Famous

But this time Stalin emphatically did not give the OGPU (now called Narkomvnutel) a free hand. The identity of the 103 persons they sent for sentence by Ulrich, of the Military Collegium, seems to prove this. Many of them seem to have been in prison awaiting sentence or transfer to a penal labour camp when Kirov died. Some at least had been caught months before trying to run away from Russia without passports.

Others seem to have been bootleggers of foreign currency. Several are said to have been Communists who had run away from Polish Ukraine (Eastern Galicia), only to fall into disgrace later with the party leadership in Soviet Ukraine. In any case, there were no famous professors or engineers among them.

This "Pseudo-Terror," therefore, made a deep general impression without, for the moment, personally upsetting Stalin's valuable "Technical-Intelligentsia."

A debate will be held at the Y.M.C.A. next Wednesday in the West Lounge at 9 p.m. The ladies, to be represented by Miss Curtin and Miss Heap, will propose "That men are greater slaves to convention than women." The men will be represented by Messrs. A. C. Jeffries and E. F. Selk.

Next Thursday the St. Andrew's Church Women's Fellowship are holding a concert in aid of St. Andrew's Benevolent Fund. The concert will take place in the St. Andrew's Hall at 9 p.m. Among the artists taking part are Mrs. Anderson Miller, Captain O. P. Joco, Mr. A. W. Lorena, Mrs. E. Schoeder and Mrs. J. A. Rlach.

A concert arranged by Madame de Precourt is being held at the Helena May Institute next Thursday week at 5.30 p.m. The programme includes a dramatic ballet, two original sketches and a musical number. Those taking part are Hermiona Beaulerck, Jack Grenham, Gerald Nigel, Jonn. Mellison, Cello Delcourt, Frank Howie and James Ferguson.

GUARD YOUR HEALTH DURING CHANGING SEASONS

BRIGHT Autumn sunshine—sudden changes—cool evenings make tricky times for normal health. With changing seasons many people find health a problem. And Autumn usually brings its crop of attacks in the form of colds and sore throats. For quick relief from colds 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it, and if taken according to the directions it not only quickly ends a cold—it smashes further developments in the form of influenza, and prevents many days laying up in bed. If taken as a gargle according to the direction on the leaflet in the packet 'ASPRO' gives astonishing relief in a very short while. The reason why 'ASPRO' is so valuable for colds, sore throats and many conditions of illness is, because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic, and anti-fermentative. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart, and its standard of purity conforms to the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession.

Stubborn Cold Goes — PROOF!

Dear Sir,
I thank you for your kind interest in directing me to the certain way to effect a cure to the nasty cold which I had been suffering for three weeks, during which time I had tried many other remedies, and I am glad to say that I have now recovered. I have used 'ASPRO' and I have found it to be a most effective remedy. I have used it for years and I have found it to be a most effective remedy. I have used it for years and I have found it to be a most effective remedy. I have used it for years and I have found it to be a most effective remedy.

STAUENCH LIEVER IN 'ASPRO' NOW— SCPTICAL AT FIRST!

Dear Sir,
I thank 'ASPRO' Tablets for warding off influenza from my little boy, aged 4½, as well as from myself, when my wife, who was then in hospital, was unable to look after him. I was told to take them with double care, while we were getting ready for the arrival of my wife. I took 'ASPRO' and nothing else. My wife is a staunch advocate of 'ASPRO' and she has taken it many times. I have used 'ASPRO' and I have found it to be a most effective remedy. I have used it for years and I have found it to be a most effective remedy. I have used it for years and I have found it to be a most effective remedy.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1935.

A Medical Centenary

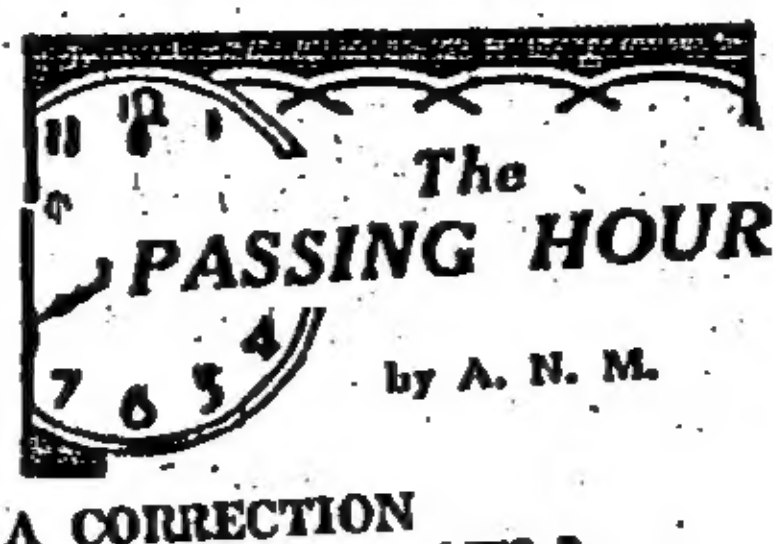

WE have not yet reached the time when we can celebrate the centenaries of the beginnings of things in Hong Kong, but Hong Kong and South China have always been very closely connected culturally and commercially. The old tradition was that Canton, Macao and Hong Kong made one community; and though tariffs and politics have done something to build a partition wall there is still much of the old feeling left, apart from any more mundane links that are forged by our obvious community of interests.

Last year we celebrated the career of Robert Morrison as the pioneer missionary and the first man to translate the Bible into Chinese, or at least Cantonese, for the earlier efforts had been connected with the North of China. This year is the centenary of the introduction of Western medicine, and the name of the pioneer was Peter Parker. In 1835 he started an Ophthalmic Hospital on a small scale in Canton, and his name is to be commemorated in November next by the formal opening of the new wing of the Canton Hospital which will very shortly be available for use. Like most beginnings it was on a modest scale; but it is the way of Nature to use small seeds for big trees. A traveller in China visited him a year or two later, and refers to the first Chinese school of Western medicine, carried on in the Doctor's own house in a book which he published in 1838, called "Fan Qui in China." "Two or three native doctors are employed in this house," he says, "one of whom has the office of dispenser. The youth I saw there seemed to be very intelligent and likely to make a very good assistant, as he knew all the instruments required in the different operations." That was ninety-nine years ago, at least it is ninety-nine years since the first student was instructed in the use of the various Ophthalmic instruments, and the celebration of the foundation of the first medical school is to be combined with the recognition of the first practice of Western medicine. How vastly has both the teaching and the practice been improved since those days.

When the celebrations are held in November the Chinese Medical Association is to hold its general meeting at the Canton Hospital, and a number of doctors from abroad have accepted an invitation to attend. The Nanking Government will not be behindhand either, for a grant of half a million dollars has been made partly to pay for the new extension, and partly to encourage the medical school, for which new buildings are to be erected at the Hospital site. It is not likely that the Kwangtung Province will fail to do its part in making it thoroughly efficient as far as equipment is concerned. The November meeting is to be the occasion of the laying of the foundation stone of the new medical school.

Behind that ceremony there is quite a long chain of negotiation to be recounted, aimed at co-ordinating the work of Canton institutions of similar aims. The school is to continue the work of the Hackett Medical College, which is to be absorbed; and after a transition period it is to form the medical faculty of Lingnan University, which will take over the control and responsibility, together with the control of the Hospital itself, and of the David Gregg Hospital, the David Gregg School of Pharmacy, and the Turner Training School for Nurses, though these institutions will continue to be worked under the old names. It is a large scheme that should make for more efficient service.

Perhaps in Canton itself a more special interest will be taken in the simultaneous celebration of a half-centenary. It was fifty years ago that Sun Yat Sen signed on as a medical student at the Hospital, and began to work out the ideas which have had so much influence on the subsequent history of his country. Whatever views may be held elsewhere his is a name to conjure with in Canton, and there can be no doubt that at that stage of his life he imbibed an impulse of reform and philanthropy which made him the prophet of the young men who wanted to bring the fire of new thought into the stately edifice of age-old Chinese tradition. New ideas suffer many strange adventures before they are, as Scots people would say, "homologated" by an old civilisation. No doubt the occasion will provide a good opportunity for a review of how far the process has gone by those who are qualified to speak on such a subject.

I am of course delighted to acknowledge the correction made by "Muslim" in the last issue of the Sunday Herald, to the effect that there were several Muallims present at the charming lecture given by the Swami Paramananda. "No one" as a famous scholar once said, "is infallible, not even the youngest of us." I was misinformed. But it may be as well to revert to the point I intended to make, which had no reference to any particular section of the community. Our lives, in so far as they are not purely personal, are governed by certain definite customs and rules about which we endlessly differ; whereas if we jettison one particular or another we are evermore in agreement, until by jettisoning everything distinctive we arrive at a condition of vagueness in which all tendency to contradict disappears because there is nothing left to be affirmed. In this difficulty the Westerner is inclined by his temperament to abandon the general and emphasise what he considers to be the next particular step required, and to regard such ideals as the brotherhood of man as not so much fallacious as ineffectual. The most difficult thing in the world is to assess human nature at its true level of value, with due allowance for its aberrations every now and then both below and above the average level. We are all much occupied with the problem of India just now; to find out how to devise a system under which the well-intentioned can find free scope and the mischief makers be held in check, and we find it a matter of infinite and unavoidable detail.

THE CURRENT YEAR

It is not very easy to account for the almost universal feeling that the year 1935 will be what is called a "pivotal year," full of big events that will end one epoch and begin another. These things are inclined not to happen when people expect them. Preventive measures are taken, all the more effectively when the anticipation is confident enough to stir the imagination. The most frequent cause of revolutions and wars is the existence of a large population on the verge of starvation; but two years ago it is estimated that five million peasants died of actual starvation or the effects of under-nourishment in the Ukraine, — in Southern Russia; — this year there is no danger of anything of that sort, partly because the five-year plan has to a considerable extent been got to work, and partly because of a good harvest. The stress seems to be rather in the disappearance of big profits than in the lack of essentials. The friction with Japan has been eased by the sale of the C.E.R., and is not likely to lead to trouble unless Russia should be involved in a struggle with Germany, or Germany should antagonise one of the Powers that at present are more eagerly pushing a policy of consideration than ever before. Japan has apparently been apprehensive of dire consequences when her resignation from the League takes effect, or because of her abrogation of the Naval Treaty; but the effects of those acts are much more likely to be

REMARKABLE RECORDS

ONLY FIVE MASTER-PILOT'S CERTIFICATES GRANTED

THE fifth official British ten years ago, already had 1,000 hours of flying to his credit. Master-Pilot's Certificate, has just been issued to Capt. A. B. H. Youell, of Imperial Airways. According to the latest figures available, Capt. Youell has now completed 8,398 flying hours, mostly over the European air routes.

The Master-Pilot's Certificate was instituted by the Air Ministry five years ago, but it was not until early in 1934 that the first award was actually made, the requirements for the Certificate being such that only pilots of exceptional air experience, both by night and day, can hope to obtain one. Applicants must, for example, hold a current license as issued to pilots flying for hire or reward; also a license as an aircraft navigator; and both these licenses must have been in force for at least five years.

The applicant must also have flown at least 1,000 hours as a pilot of civil aircraft during the five years prior to his application; and, in addition, a considerable night-flying experience is called for, including a minimum of 20 night flights above land and sea, each beginning and ending during the hours of darkness, and lasting for at least an hour.

Holders of the Certificate

The four previous holders of the Master-Pilot's certificate are all airmen of Imperial Airways — viz. Captain L. A. Walters, Capt. J. Spafford, Capt. F. D. Travers, and Capt. E. S. Alcock.

It was at the early age of 16 that the latest recipient of this much-coveted distinction, Capt. Youell, entered the field of aviation, his first task being the distinctly humble one of mending punctures in the tyres of aeroplane wheels. That, however, did not satisfy him for long, and within a year he was flying one of the biplanes at the flying school where he was employed, while not long afterwards he found himself a war pilot on the Western Front, flying fighting planes in combat with the enemy.

Surviving the perils of active service, Capt. Youell became associated, when peace came, with an aeroplane joy-riding organisation, touring Europe with this concern, and giving exhibition flights as far north as Sweden. Then, with the development of regular air services between London and the Continent, Capt. Youell became an airline pilot, and has been flying big passenger air-liners ever since.

Altogether, since he first became a pilot 17 years ago, Capt. Youell has flown approximately 1,000,000 miles, and has carried 40,000 passengers.

Certificate No. 1

The distinction of having gained Master-Pilot's Certificate No. 1 is held by Capt. Walters, who began flying in 1918, and who, prior to joining Imperial Airways just over

Mr. M. J. B. MONTARGIS

This is the twenty-eighth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyak, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is
Mr. M. J. B. Montargis — "Maurice" to his friends — who is well-known in Hong Kong as an exchange broker.

Born in Paris in 1884, he will be 50 years of age in a month's time. After graduating from the Paris University he joined the staff of the Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris in 1902; being posted to their London branch. In 1910 he was sent to Bombay as cashier. On the outbreak of the Great War in 1914 he returned to France to serve and was with the French cavalry in Lorraine, Alsace and Arras until 1916, when he was transferred to Salonika. During his service on the Western front he was in close contact with the British troops. After serving for some time in Macedonia he was again transferred to the Western front and, when the War ended on November 11, 1918, he was serving at Verdun as a Lieutenant of Artillery. He was twice wounded, was twice mentioned in dispatches and is the holder of the Croix de Guerre for bravery.

RETIREES FROM BANKING
After the War Mr. Montargis returned to the banking business, holding posts as accountant in Tientsin and Shanghai, assistant manager in Saigon and manager in Yokohama and Hong Kong. In 1923 he retired from banking, remaining in close touch with it, however, being admitted a member of the Hong Kong Exchange Brokers' Association.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 142.

Ma-on-shan

The group of peaks which includes Ma-on-shan (Saddle Mountain) and the Hunchbacks and which forms such a conspicuous landmark is a very interesting district both for the climber, the walker and the field naturalist. One of the best views in the Territories can be obtained from the summit of Ma-on-shan, 2,261 feet and almost as good a view from the highest point of the Hunchbacks, 2,226 feet. There are three orthodox routes up the mountain. One is from the Tide Cove side up the Iron Mine road and on to the top of the pass, which is almost due south of Ma-on-shan peak, and from thence northwards to climb the shoulder connecting Ma-on-shan with Pyramid Hill 1,762 feet. The other two are from Sal Kung on the east, either along the path leading north of the wood above the village of Pak Kong Au, then to the small village of Ngong Ping and from there to the top of the pass from Tide Cove. Alternatively from Sal Kung a more northerly route can be followed through the village of Sha Kok Mi, then up the path on the north side of the cultivated valley to the north-west of the village, and then in a northerly direction, keeping to the east of Pyramid Hill, the path eventually leading to Ma-on-shan. The first of these three routes is the shortest but all are quite straightforward and it is merely a question of time before the average walker reaches the top.

There are various other routes up or down this mountain. One is by ascending from the village of Ma-on-shan to the western peak of the Hunchbacks from where, by walking up and down a series of little peaks in an easterly direction, the highest peak of this series is reached. On top is a broken down cairn; from here, do not turn north unless you wish to descend the very steep N.W. ridge or the equally difficult N.E. ridge but turn S.W. along a path which leads down and then up to the top of Ma-on-shan. This ascent (or descent) along the ridge of the Hunchbacks should not be attempted unless all members of the party are fit and used to climbing up and down steep grassy slopes strewn with loose rocks.

ALLEGED THEFT OF RINGS

Accused Pleads For Time To Make Restitution

Chan Yiu-wing, a 26-year-old unemployed, living on the third floor of No. 70 Stanley Street, was charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning with the theft of two gold finger rings, valued at $40.50, and some clothing, valued at $51.50.

Sergeant Kinnear stated that accused went to pay a visit to Wong Ng-mui, a waitress, at No. 44 Sal Street, on January 21. He asked to see the rings, which he put them into his fingers and then ran away.

When he was arrested on Thursday, pawn tickets relating to the clothing, the property of Chin Leung-wan, an accountant, of No. 12 Hill Road, were found in his possession. The suits were recovered, but the rings had been melted at a jeweller's shop.

Accused, who had three previous police convictions, asked for some time to enable him to make restitution. He was remanded 48 hours.

The North-East Ridge

The 10.15 a.m. train from Kowloon was left at Tai Po from where we were given a lift in a launch to White Head peninsula north of the Hunchbacks. We landed on the shore due north of the village of Cheung Muk Tau at 11.50 a.m. and crossed a small ridge and some paddy fields to the village. Two paths from this village lead southwards one west of the stream bed and one east, it is advisable to get to the east side of the valley at the village or time will be wasted negotiating a maze of cattle tracks. This path is marked on the map for a short distance, actually it continues further than marked but it is completely covered in by trees and ferns, so as to be invisible from the air and the map, it must be remembered, was based on photographs taken from the air. Presently we left this path and climbed to the top of the ridge to join a path leading from the village of Kun Kung. This path ends on the map at the height of 450 metres but here again the map is at fault due to the same cause for from this point the path is completely covered in by vegetation. It peters out eventually and the last few hundred feet up a very steep ridge, partly precipitous, has to be climbed without any guidance. The word path is a complimentary term to designate what, for much of the distance, can best be described as a pig track. We came out almost at the top of the Hunchbacks, actually a little north of the summit where the N.W. ridge commences. From here we walked to the top of Ma-on-shan, reached at 3.30 p.m. The descent was made by the path west of Pyramid Hill to Ngong Ping and Sai Kung by the route described above. Sai Kung was reached at 4.50 p.m. A ten minutes halt and then we made an evening stroll to Kowloon over Cuckoo Pass; the halt for the No. 10 bus was attained at 6.55 p.m.

QUIET WEDDING AT CATHEDRAL

HOPTON-SMITH

HONEYMOON TO BE SPENT AT REPULSE BAY

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. John's Cathedral yesterday when Emma Hopton, the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hopton, of Melbourne, Australia, became the bride of Herbert Cyril Smith, an Engineer in the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company, and the second son of Capt. and Mrs. R. D. Smith, of Hong Kong. The Rev. C. Brown officiated.

The bride, who was given away by Mr. Thomas Hynes, of the General Post Office, looked charming in an ensemble of pink georgette with waterfall cascade which formed a short train and which was trimmed with pearls, and carrying a sheaf of pink gladioli. Mrs. G. Boyce was the matron of honour.

The duties of best man were carried out by Mr. James Reid, second officer of the s.s. Hin Sang, also of the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the private residence of Mr. T. Hynes.

Later the happy couple left for Repulse Bay where they are spending their honeymoon.

STOLEN BANK DRAFT

Unsuccessful Effort To Obtain $800

Charged with receiving a stolen $300 bank draft, and attempting to obtain $300 from the Kwong Hing Bank by false pretences on Thursday, Wu Shu, a 22-year-old unemployed, was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Police Court yesterday morning.

It was alleged that accused presented the draft for payment at 3 p.m. on Thursday at the bank, and when asked which firm he represented said that he was a foki from the Wing Yee Wo firm, of No. 90 Des Voeux Road West. When questioned as to why the draft was not stamped with the firm's chop he replied that he had always cashed the drafts on previous occasions without the chop.

The manager of the bank grew suspicious and phoned up the firm, who denied sending a foki to cash a draft and sent one of their own foki to the bank. On his arrival defendant made an attempt to escape, but was arrested before he reached the door.

Accused pleaded that the draft was given him by a certain Chan Lim to cash, and that he did not know that it was stolen.

COMING CONCERT IN KOWLOON

For Benevolent Society Of St. Andrew's

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME

The Concert to be given at St. Andrew's Hall next Thursday evening, organised by the Women's Fellowship, promises to be one of great interest. All the items have been specially selected to make a wide appeal; they are essentially tuneful and of the more popular type, though all are of such merit that not even the most fastidious highbrow could cavil at their inclusion in a concert programme.

Of the artists, Mrs. Anderson Miller, Captain O. P. Joce and Mr. A. W. Lorena are well known to Z.B.W. listeners, while Mrs. E. Schroeder and Mrs. J. A. Riach have given great pleasure to their audiences on frequent occasions.

It is hoped that there will be a really good attendance not only because the concert will be one of the type rarely given in Kowloon, but also on account of the excellent object of which the concert is in aid, the St. Andrew's Benevolent Fund. The concert begins at 9 p.m. and the prices of admission are, $1.50, $1 and fifty cents.

The programme is as follows:—

When Dull Care
An Willow...arr. Lane Wilson
Some Rival has Stolen my True Love away

Captain O. P. Joce
Soprano in G minor for violin and piano
Mrs. E. Schroeder and Mrs. J. A. Riach

Piano Solo—

Five eyes...Armstrong Gibbs
Captain O. P. Joce
Mrs. J. A. Riach will accompany throughout the programme.

REMANDED IN POLICE CUSTODY

Defending Counsel Raises Query

Charged with the possession of 590 counterfeit Chinese 20-cent pieces, Pun Po Yair, alias Pun Yuk, and Liu Tak Ching were remanded in police custody for 48 hours by Mr. W. M. Thomson at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning.

Mr. M. K. Lo appeared on behalf of the first defendant, and stated that he wished to know the reasons for his client being remanded in police custody. Detective-Sergeant Clarke stated for the prosecution that he could not disclose the reasons. Bail of $3,500 was allowed.

LOCAL OVERSEAS LEAGUE MEETING

Second Gala Dance On February 23

The Annual Branch Meeting of the Overseas League will be held in the Lounge of Messrs. Lane, Crawford next Wednesday at 5.15 p.m. Tea will be served at an inclusive cost of $1.00.

On Saturday, February 23, the Second Annual Gala Dance in collaboration with the Hotel Management will be held at the Hong Kong Hotel. Members are requested to make every effort to attend both of these functions, as part of the total proceeds will be devoted to the Headquarters Building Fund.

FOX FUR ILLEGALLY PAWNED

Accountant's Smart Work Commended

For illegally pawning a fox fur, belonging to Li Sze, an elderly married woman, Li Cheung, a 23-year-old unemployed, was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

The defendant was also charged with snatching the fur from the complainant, but he pleaded that he had picked it up in the street, and the police offered no evidence against him on that count, so he was discharged on that count.

After passing sentence, Mr. Hamilton commended Li Hing, the accountant of the pawnshop for the smart work he did in the arrest of the defendant. Detective-Sergeant Kennedy, of the Hong Kong Police Station, stated that the complainant made a report immediately after the fur had been stolen, and that the Police had warned all the pawn shops.

Next day the defendant went to a pawn shop to pawn the fur, and Li Hing, the accountant, was called about while making out the receipt, while his foki was on the way to the Police Station. The Police arrived and arrested the defendant.

Talented Dance Team Take Hong Kong Public By Storm

It has often been said of us that audiences we are distinctly hard to please, and even when satisfied, very undemonstrative in our enthusiasm. Even if this were true—and there is every reason to doubt the authenticity of the statement—surely it is because we want to see the humour in a joke before we laugh, and appreciate the qualities of an act before we applaud, and not, as some people suggest, because we are dull and difficult to please.

During the past few months many of the most talented and versatile artists in the Far East and from the United States have been kind enough to include Hong Kong in their ports of call, and in each and every case have been accorded a warm welcome. The most recent arrivals, Harlan & Janet Miller, from the Cathay Hotel, Shanghai, have proved no exception.

In point of fact it is generally agreed that they are quite the most popular couple ever to appear here—and if the local public are difficult to please then they must be very good indeed, and as a matter of fact, they are.

They enter the second week of their stay here this afternoon when they appear at the tea-dance in the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel. Their programme, which is entirely new, is fully up to standard and includes that most popular of old-time favourites, "Blue Danube Waltz." It may be stated with conviction that two hours at the Hong Kong Hotel this afternoon would be two hours well spent.

What Few Simple Beliefs We Need Christ, Man Amongst Ordinary Men

Common Misconceptions Of His Personality

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

4 — THE PERSONALITY OF CHRIST

NOT only did His home-life (as we saw in the last article) play a large part in the moulding of the character of the Boy Jesus, and provide Him with so many homely illustrations for His later parables, but His environment had much to do with it too.

Opposite to Nazareth there emerged the Jerusalem Road and the road from Egypt. A little to the north came the rich caravans on their way to Damascus. All the rumours of the Empire entered Palestine close to Nazareth, and along these roads passed the immortal figures of the Parables. It is hard to believe that He failed to be in touch with all the cosmopolitan humanity that passed just beyond the village.

So the years rolled on, of which we have so little record. Joseph died, and on His willing shoulders there fell the responsibility for the upkeep of the little home. He had naturally followed the occupation of His earthly father, and we can picture Him making cattle yokes, and chairs and tables for the countryside around.

A Good Workman

Even here He left us an example. One cannot imagine that He ever turned out a bad bit of work. When in the after-years He preached to the people, one never hears of anyone getting up and telling Him that He had no right to set Himself up above others, when He had been guilty of turning out shoddy material from His workshop. The same intense care that He gave to His ministry He must have given to His daily work. He knew the meaning of tired hands and a weary brain at the close of the day, just as the world's toilers have ever done. He raised the status of the working-man to one of nobility, and every workman can find in Him a brother, who knows what work is.

There came the day when for the last time He swept up the shavings from the workshop floor, and laid aside His tools. Something whispered to Him that He had a greater destiny before Him in the world than that lay beyond His native hills. He went to John to be baptized, and then retired into the wilderness to form His own plan for His work.

His Great Testing

In the days of His young manhood He had come across ordinary temptations, but now He was faced with something beyond human conception. He seemed suddenly to realise the tremendous powers that were latent within Him. Why not use them? He was hungry—why not turn the stones into bread? But He knew that if He did, He could never claim again to be one of us, and that if He used that power on this occasion, then He would be likely to use it again, when worse things than hunger threatened.

His nerves were always under perfect control. He was never anything but complete master of Himself and of the circumstance as it found Him. All through that long torture at the end, He never showed one semblance of fear. Even Pilate felt it, and the dying thief, and the Centurion who was standing by His Cross at the last.

Loved the People

He revelled in the pressure of the crowds. Again and again we read of Him being a guest in the houses of various people. The cold bare narrative of the Gospels fails to give us a real picture of the laughing crowds that followed Him, hanging upon His words, loving His shrewd retorts to those who were trying to catch Him in His speech. He described Himself as a "Bridgroom"—the centre and soul of a glorious existence.

His last supper with His disciples was an hour of solemn memories. Their minds were heavy with foreboding. He talked to them earnestly, but His whole purpose was to fill them with a conquering hope and faith. "My Joy I leave with you," He said, "Be of good cheer." Joy and cheer were of the essence of His character. Yes, He who came to be our Brother, our Friend and our Example was a man's Man, from start to finish. His was the quiet, serene certainty of the strength which had no need to be truculent, and was strong enough to be gentle. (To be continued)

Should Women dread the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness.

Simply because there is a shortage of vital minerals in the body.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of Kalzana, the mineral food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with the indispensable minerals needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

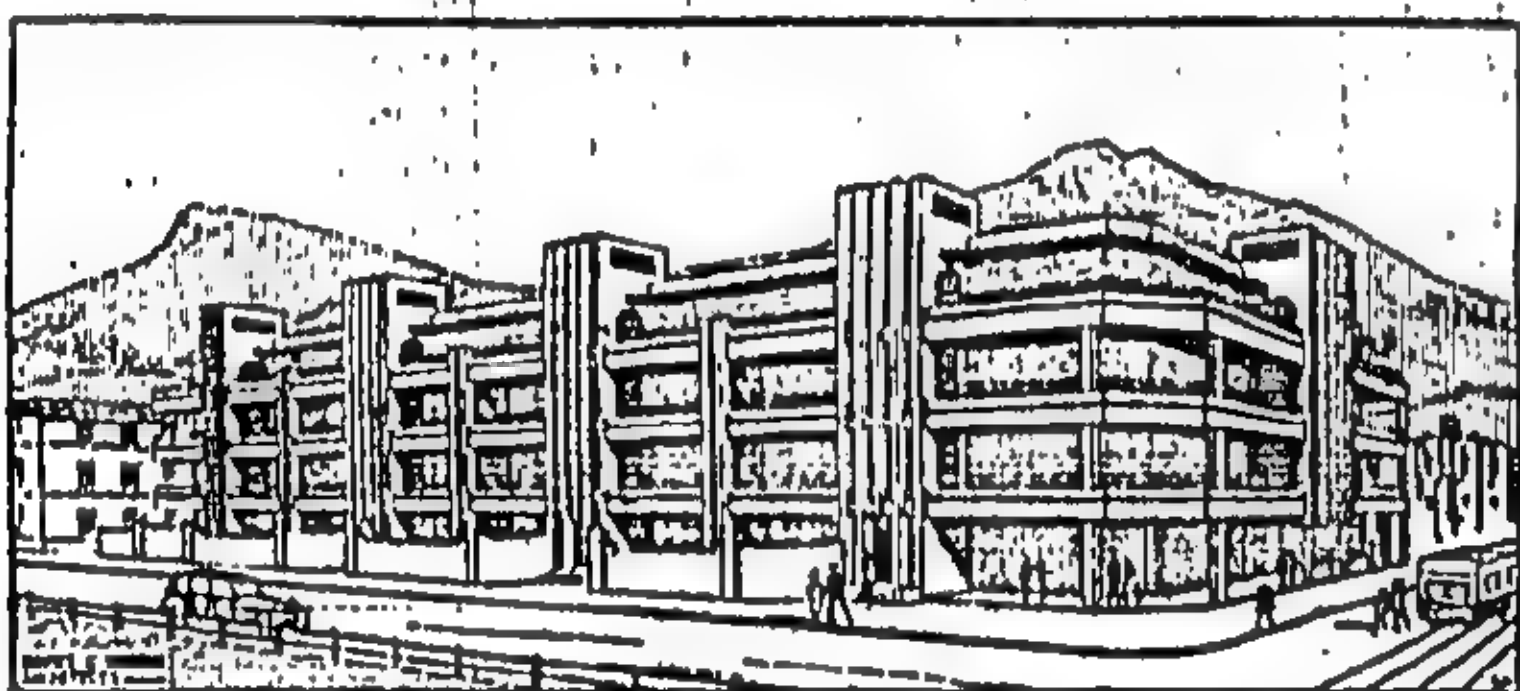

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the mineral salts be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

VETERANS OF THE AIR SERVICES

The Prince's Pilot

Another of the pilots of Imperial Airways who recently joined Capt. Youell in the distinction of having flown 1,000,000 miles is Capt. O. P. Jones. He first entered aviation in 1917, when he underwent a course of flying instruction at Shoreham. Capt. Jones then became a Service pilot, and put in approximately 550 hours flying in many different types of aircraft while with the R.F.C. and R.A.F. Then, resigning from the Service, he started a joy-riding business of his own.

Subsequently, for some time, he was with Mr. A. J. (now Sir Alan) Cobham, and then flew as a pilot on the early Continental services, joining Imperial Airways on its establishment in 1924. Capt. Jones has had the honour, several times, of piloting air-liners in which the Prince of Wales has been a passenger. On one occasion, while giving demonstration flights in Scotland, Capt. Jones took up 3,116 passengers in 3 days.

Another remarkable record as a pilot is that of Capt. F. Dismore, of Imperial Airways, who has now been flying regularly for 21 years, his air experience dating back to before the war. He was also flying constantly during the war; while he has been engaged ever since hostilities ceased in piloting commercial aircraft. Capt. Dismore gained his certificate of proficiency as a pilot as far back as 1913, and his air career since then is believed to have established a record for continuous flying over a long period of years.

Flying 21 Years Ago

Twenty-one years ago, when Capt. Dismore first began to fly, he was piloting a crude, box-type bi-plane driven by a single 50 h.p. engine and carrying a pilot and one passenger. To-day, illustrating 21 years of progress, he flies as Commander of air-liners which are driven by four engines developing a total of more than 2,000 horsepower and which accommodate as many as 43 people—39 passengers and a crew of four.

Among the other veteran pilots of Imperial Airways a well-known figure is that of Capt. A. S. Wilcockson. Joining the R.A.F. at the beginning of 1917, Capt. Wilcockson completed 580 hours of flying before demobilisation in 1919. For some months after that he acted as pilot on the official air service which carried mails from Folkestone to our Army of Occupation at Cologne. Then he began flying on the pioneer commercial air lines between London and the Continent, subsequently joining Imperial Airways. Capt. Wilcockson has gained distinction as a test-pilot as well as an air-liner Commander, having carried out much of the early test-work with slotted-wing aircraft. The number of hours he has spent in the air now total 8,991.

Other Veterans

Another veteran of Imperial Airways is Capt. W. Rogers, known to his many friends as "Rodge." After seeing war service with the R.A.F., Capt. Rogers became an airway pilot in 1920, flying the twin-engined machines which were the forerunners of the giant 4-engined craft of to-day. Now the number of hours he has spent in the air stand at 7,880.

Two more of these veterans of the air are Capt. H. H. Perry and H. J. Horsey. The former, after a large amount of flying in the early days of civil aviation, joined Imperial Airways in 1927, and his flying hours now reach a figure of 7,137. Capt. Horsey, who is an expert in handling flying-boats as well as big multi-engined land-planes, has now spent 6,088 hours in the air.

At the present time approximately seventy pilots, captains and first-officers, are in the regular service of Imperial Airways, flying on the European and Empire routes operated by the Company.

When commercial flying began, just over fifteen years ago, the first air-line pilots were recruited from the official Communication Squadron which, during the last stages of the war, had been flying with important officials between London and the Continent. Each of these airmen was a master of his art and, as the number of airway pilots grew, the wonderful spirit of those first men, and their fine attitude towards their calling, was handed on to those who followed them, the result being that the air-line pilot of to-day has a great tradition to live up to, and is doing so worthily.

The Hong Kong Chinese Choral Society have arranged a variety concert for next Tuesday at 5.30 p.m. in St. John's Cathedral Hall, in aid of the Street Sweepers' Shelter. Several well-known artists will be taking part.

THE PASSING HOUR

very slow in revealing themselves, and war does not seem to be the probable, much less the inevitable result. We are much more likely to see a renewed attempt at a World Economic Conference or something of that sort. There have even been prophecies of a revolution in the United States; but any conceivable revolution would only make things worse. That is true of the world too; we have plenty of troubles, but they are none of them the sort that can be cured by violence. We are also told that there will be a General Election in England ending in a Socialistic Dictatorship. It is much more probable that people will get tired of making trouble for their neighbours and settle down to make rather more comfort for themselves. The chaos will not be mended without some big changes in organisation; but sheer necessity will be an efficient master, however stern. "Preparedness" may be a blessed word; but to-day the fruitful cause of calamities is the idea that they are inevitable.

Change to GIBBS!"

The necks of the teeth and the spaces between are danger spots. Here the enamel is thinnest and food deposits linger. Only a safe and thorough tooth-cleanser can ward off decay. That's why Dentists use and recommend Gibbs Dentifrice.

Gibbs Dentifrice cannot scratch or wear even the most delicate enamel, yet it cleans teeth and mouth thoroughly. The fragrant foam penetrates into every nook and cranny of the teeth and mouth, under the gum edges, destroying germs and removing everything that could cause decay.

Keep your teeth perfect, your breath sweet, your mouth clean and refreshed. Change to Gibbs to-day.

EUKUTOL

THE BIOLOGICAL SKIN TONIC

BEAUTY nowadays is not just an accidental gift of nature; it can be attained also by well thought-out and systematic care of the body, that most exquisite and wonderful organisation which has come to us from the Divine hand. And although beauty is more than skin-deep, a dazzling skin is indispensable to beauty. A few minutes devoted daily to the care of your skin will keep you young and supple, healthy and attractive. "Beauty and health are the chief sources of happiness," says Beaconsfield. But how, you ask, can I appropriate beauty? Our medical, chemical and cosmetic experts have solved the question for you, Madam.

The preparations forming the foundation for the Eukutol System are the outcome of years of scientific labour, of investigations into the natural requirements of the skin, into the active elements and nutrients needed by the skin for the unremitting renewal of its beauty. The Eukutol System is explained in a small booklet and when you have read it you will join the already vast ranks of Eukutol adherents. You will have every reason to be grateful for the results of the System. Make a beginning this very evening, with a free sample from all dispensaries and stores.

To Messrs. BORNEMANN & CO.,
Prince's Building,

CLUB SENIORS BEAT INDIANS

Pereira Shines In Friendly Game

The Hong Kong Cricket Club gained a 3 wickets' victory over the Indian Recreation Club yesterday in a friendly cricket match at Sookunpo.

The Indian Recreation Club totalling 122, to which F. D. Pereira, hitting 7 boundaries, contributed 43 runs, and M. C. Arcuill 22. Pereira also scored 3 for 35, while A. R. Minu took 3 for 55, and M. P. Madar 1 for 2 against the Club.

The Club scored 177 for 7 wickets, which included 59 from J. P. Williams, 32 from T. A. Pearce, and 33 from E. R. Duckitt. C. K. Hillwood had 2 for 10 and E. R. Duckitt 2 for 9 against the Indians.

"That's the Man I Saw Near Lindbergh's Home"

Artist Paul Fréhm pictures the dramatic scene at the trial of Bruno Hauptmann as the 37-year-old Amandus Hochmuth, neighbour of the Lindberghs, identifies the defendant as the man he saw driving a car containing a ladder on the road leading to the Lindbergh home on the day of the kidnapping.

Ten minutes from the interval the Club forwards broke away, but Munro's pass was intercepted by Metcalf, who was, however, grassed before he had proceeded much further.

Just before the interval Turner sent Griffiths away and the latter put ahead as Lloyd approached him.

Hutchison, beating the Services' three-quarters to the ball, sent Lammeret away with a splendid long pass, and, in spite of attention from Evans, Lammeret crossed over to score beneath the bar. Castleton missed the kick.

In the second half Lammeret further increased the Club's score with a sensational run down the touchline in the course of which he passed three Services' men almost a yard from the line. Robertson failed to kick the goal.

The Services levelled the scores when, following a rush, Davidson once again scored, taking the ball over at his feet, the bounce deceiving Robertson. Collard failed to add the points.

At this stage pees sprained his ankle in a rush and was carried off for good.

Neatly Dropped-Goal

With about 10 minutes to go Rigg was sent away on the right, but Clark came across to bring him low. From the resultant scrum the ball travelled out to Hutchison, who dropped a very neat goal to take the Services' defence by surprise.

Just before the final whistle Hutchison cut clean through the opposing defence to score the best try of the day for Robertson to convert.

Major H. J. M. McIntyre, R. A., refereed and the teams were:—
Club:—L. G. Robertson, W. H. B. Rigg, R. H. Griffiths, J. Hutchison and G. P. Lammeret; M. W. Turner, and Campbell; A. F. Walkden, W. E. Peers, G. A. Stewart, R. G. Castleton, S. H. Garrod, K. A. Mamo, J. T. Edkins, and J. C. Millar.

CHILDREN'S SPORTS AT WANCHAI

First Annual Event At Southern Playground

TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM

A crowd estimated at over 3,000 gathered to witness the first annual children's sports which were held under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., at the Southern Playground, Wanchai, yesterday.

Preliminary heats were held last week to decide the Hong Kong and Kowloon representatives, and in yesterday's finals Hong Kong proved vastly superior, scoring 110 points to the mainlanders' 66. All the prizes were donated by Sir Thomas Southern.

Among those present were the Hon. Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., C.M.G., Lady Southern, O.B.E., Mrs. Collett, the guest of Lady Southern, Mr. J. L. MacPherson, O.B.E., Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., L.L.D., Mrs. Kotewall, and Mr. M. K. Lo, Chairman of the Children's Playground Association.

At the conclusion of the sports Lady Southern presented the prizes to the winners. In a few well chosen words Dr. Kotewall introduced Lady Southern to the children, who welcomed her with rousing cheers.

A CHINESE OPERA "The Sorrow Of The T'ang Pavilion"

Perfect Acting Witnessed
In Hong Kong

(By Phyllis Juby)

"The glory of trailing clouds is in with light and amusing grace. Mul-fel's white sleeves are tears as they fall from her cheeks. Cymbals crash. The music quivers. Soldiers pass, pink and gold. A Turkoman general, Hon Luk-shan, appears. Graceful figure in black and white. His slippers are jade green. His white horse is represented by a fringed rod. He passes singing.

THE theatre holds a queer, unearthly atmosphere. The green curtain, the gold pebbled characters, and the tangerine ornaments like sea-weed. Coiling, glittering shapes twine on the walls. Wave upon wave of purple-blue smoke rises until faces are clouded and senses lost in a mist. The chair-back is a silver fin. There is a metallic gleam of seas. Painted cheeks and earrings and jet black hair. The resonant sound of a gong. It has a sandalwood flavour. Cymbals clash. The curtain rises.

Officials enter, one by one, in traditional array to worship the royal ancestral tablets. Their black brows curve up over reddened eyelids. The Emperor, Tong Man Kwong, enters. His gown is a gorgeous gold and yellow, and his head-dress glitters. His Imperial Concubine is with him; brown and gold loveliness, with black braided hair and long white tassels. She carries the ivory stick of office, and dances in graceful movements to silver tinkling beats of music. Her long white sleeves are a breeze of muslin. As she goes, her tiny slipped feet are petals that caress the leaves.

The Imperial Favourite

A canopied couch stands in Yang Kuei-fel's inner apartment. She is there, one foot resting slightly before the other. The guitar, shaped beautifully as a melon, sings with her. Her fingers are young bamboo that come and go freshly. Her walk seems just a gentle sway of the body slightly forward, like a stem bearing a flower more lovely than an ordinary flower. The violin sounds, and the rhythm is mellow. She sits, and her little red slippers are partly hidden by the long sleeves as they fall. She leaves, with a messenger and the Emperor enters. His voice is full and clever. The music expresses a new warmth. Two attendants listen gracefully. A red-gold gleam falls to his feet. He looks for Yang Kuei-fel. She is not there; but soon she enters in a fairy lightness of apricot muslin. She poses and sings, waving a long white feather. The Emperor watches with pleasure from his hiding-place. Her six attendants set off her frail grace in brilliant colours. The Emperor emerges on tip-toe as she beholds herself in a silver mirror. She falls to the ground in a curtsy and sings. The falsetto voice is studied and perfect as the gestures, yet each comes easily. The music is a pleasant, haunting rhythm that quickens like air as it rises. He describes her in song: she hides behind her feather. Her face is clever and lively in its loveliness; her voice clear and happy. She drinks from a little silver wine-bowl in his hand. Their love is a grace.

The Dispossessed

Mul-fel sings her unhappiness—a truly lovely lament. Her place has been taken by Yang Kuei-fel. She lifts the long white sleeves to her brow and the gesture of sorrow is complete. A messenger in brilliant blue enters, and their chant between the songs has a fairy-light charm. She sits down to write. Her upright brush glides, quickly.

Yang Kuei-fel enters her room with the Emperor. He now wears a vermilion cloak over the yellow-gold. He receives Mul-fel's letter and leaves. Yang Kuei-fel is ill but dances. A very swaying grace: a heavier wind in the willows. Long white tassels hang from the silken cord at her waist. Her cloak is blue and white patterned.

Mul-fel and Yang Kuei-fel meet. The Emperor flees, troubled. There is a melody of women's voices and gestures. The music is still. Mul-fel is defeated. Kuei-fel moves out

EAST LANCES WIN IN THREE DIVISIONS

Hynes and A. Duncan worked hard, but the latter found Baldry too fast and clever, and was rarely able to stop the Lincoln right winger.

The forwards were seldom seen in the first half, except for an occasional breakaway, being well held by the Lincoln defence, but during the second period Howe and Bickford proved how dangerous they could be, being prominent in many speedy runs on the Lincoln's citadel.

Forrow, the Club inside-right, was rather puzzling. At times he displayed splendid form, his clever ball control and dribbling easily outwitting Hobson and Edmundson, while on other occasions he seemed slow and almost disinterested in the game.

The remaining forwards fitted in well, Howe proving the ideal leader, always up with the ball, and quick as lightning to seize an opening.

The Lincoln defence opened strongly, and were always too good for the Club forwards in the early part of the game, but fell away badly in the second half.

Meakin played well in goal, and saved several good efforts. Ash was the pick of the two backs, clearing well under pressure, and putting in a lot of good first-time tackling, but he was not covered as well as he might have been by Edmundson.

Ridley On Form

The halves were dependable and hard-working, marking and positioning well. Their passes were accurate and well-timed, Dudley and Robson keeping Ridley and Baldry well on the move.

Ridley once again played up to form and made many splendid openings, but Malpas could not find the target, and played well below his usual standard.

Baldry shone on the left-wing, and, being well supplied with the ball during the first half, made the fullest use of all his chances, sending over countless perfect crosses. The right-wing, Higgins and English, were also well in the picture, and combined well.

Higgins showed, by his display yesterday, that his true position is in the centre. Although scoring both goals, his quick and natural bustle was wasted in the inside-right berth, and he had few chances of displaying his effective headwork. English was a good winger, sending over perfect crosses.

Lincoln's Early Score

The game opened with an early thrill, Baldry presenting Ridley with a good opening, but Rodgers saved the latter's shot in splendid style.

The Lincoln took an early lead, Rodgers pushing out a free kick taken by Robson to Higgins, who cleverly shot through a son of legs into the corner, Rodgers being unaided.

A good shot from Dudley was capably dealt with by Rodgers, and Strange headed out a terrific drive by Baldry which looked a certain goal. The ball went to Higgins who crashed it into the net with a splendid first-time effort. The Lincoln were good value for their two-goal lead at this stage, playing far superior football to that of the Club.

A shot by Ridley looked a goal, but unluckily rebounded off the upright, and Malpas finished things off by shooting over.

The Club forwards then broke away, and forced a corner on the right. Duncan placed the ball in the goalmouth, and from the ensuing melee, Hill drove the ball into the net.

The Equaliser

The Club put more life into their movements after this success, and Howe went through with a pass from Forrow, but shot high over the bar.

The Club's equaliser came in the first few minutes after the resumption. Bickford was sent away, and he cleverly drew Ash out of position and passed in to Howe, who coolly deflected the ball past Meakin for the best goal of the match. Ridley and Baldry were seen in many combined movements, but having drawn level, the Club defence were giving nothing away, and put up a staunch resistance.

The following exchanges went in favour of the Club, and with Skinner continually getting the ball to his forwards, the Lincoln defence went through a thorough testing. Twice Forrow went near with good efforts, heading just over from corners put in by Bickford, and once Howe made one of his characteristic runs, beating three men, only to have his final shot splendidly saved by Meakin.

The Lincoln's attacking machine managed to start a counter-attack towards the end, and from Baldry's

EAST LANCES BEAT KOWLOON

Knox, on Kowloon's left-wing, was particularly speedy and the major part of their attack was due to his energies on the wing.

Several good opportunities by the Kowloon forwards were lost due to the particularly smart defence by the East Lanes, and a reliable goalkeeper in Oxford.

Willie and Eastman, in the Kowloon defence, worked hard and gave a creditable performance against the fast soldier forwards.

Towards the end of the game Boyes, the Kowloon goal-keeper, made some brilliant saves and cleared effectively, but in the first half he did not show his best form.

The East Lanes opened the scoring after 15 minutes when, following a swift wing movement, the ball was centred and Lawton scored with a first-timer.

Kowloon Equalise

Kowloon tried hard to equalise soon after, and once Knox, on the left-wing, almost claimed a goal, but he was rushed off the ball when almost in front of the East Lanes' goal, by Swain, whose speed proved more than useful on occasions. Kowloon equalised with a snap goal just before the interval when a particularly smart wing movement saw the ball reach Oxford, who misjudged for G. White to score easily.

East Lanes Score Three

After the interval, the East Lanes scored their second goal when Boyes dropped the ball from a drive for Gorman to rush in and net.

The soldiers kept up the attack and Willie gave a fine performance in clearing dangerous shots, but eventually Tuley sent in a grand centre which Lawton converted in good style.

Just before the final whistle the soldiers netted their fourth and final goal when a right-wing movement, coupled with a good centre, gave Gorman the chance to net.

Kowloon—Boyes; Willie, Eastman; Davis, Pope, Gilchrist; V. White, Elliott, G. White, Barlow and Knox.

East Lanes—Oxford; Swain, Ratcliffe; Power, Thompson, Smith; Swain, Horner, Gorman, Lawton and Tuley.

A free kick for an offence against Goodrich, Skinner, drove hard goalwards, but Li got on his knees to breast the ball clear; Gray caught the ball on the rebound, but Li got his leg in the way; Skinner then had a second attempt, which hit the upright for Lau Mau to gather and relieve up field. The Chinese were very lucky in this instance, only the resourcefulness of Li saving the situation.

Gray had more bad luck when he dribbled through and shot from the penalty spot, Li giving a corner. Ten minutes from the commencement of the second half, Ip Pak Wai, receiving a pass from Tam scored the second and last goal for the Chinese. Crocker made an excellent save when he dived full length to save a terrific drive from about five yards by Wong Mee Shun, Tso taking the corner kick for Tam to shoot wide.

It was a very good game, but a draw would have been a fairer result. The Navy enjoyed the best part of the game, their passing, kicking, etc., were excellent, but they were up against a good defence.

South China "A"—Tang Yat-ming; Lau Mau, Li Tin-sang; Leo Kwok-wai; Leung Wing-chai, Leung In-chai; Wong Mee-shun, Ip Pak-wai, Fung King-cheung, Tam Kwong-pak, Tso Kwai-shing.

Navy—Crocker; Beard, Moss; Hughes, Bennett, Goodrich; Kiley, Roberts, Gray, Constable and Skinner.

Ireland scored their only try through O'Connor in the first minute of the second half, the effort being unconverted.

Following this the Irishmen were continually being penalised for off-side, Boughton landing three penalty goals to give England a convincing victory by 14 points to 3.—Router.

centro, English tested Rodgers with a splendid shot from 20 yards.

Club—Rodger, Gamble, S. Strangor; Hynes, Skinner, A. Duncan; Duncan, Forrow, Howe, Hill and Bickford.

Lincoln—Meakin; Ash, Edmundson; Thompson, Dudley, Robson; English, Higgins, Malpas, Ridley and Baldry.

were completely outplayed, confidence was brought about by the impenetrable display of Rowlands, and the Fusiliers began to take up the cudgels of attack.

Emanating from the half-line, with Grindley playing the game of his life, this new-found confidence spread through the whole team and the abruptness of the change caught the Recreio unprepared.

The Fusiliers swung the ball about with such accuracy and rapidly that they encountered very little resistance from the Recreio defence.

Harrison, Dennis, and Talbot piled Marques with a continuous personal penchant for snap-shot through a mass of players, which caused Marques a great deal of uneasiness.

Although Beltrao held his end up well and succeeded in quashing the majority of the attacks which entered his province, the Fusilier forwards found quite a number of loop-holes in the defensive work of both Silva-Netto and Bowen through which to push their attack, and it is to Marques' credit that only four goals entered his net.

Fusilier Halves Shine

A. V. Gosano and B. Gosano, after a glorious start, suddenly found that their passes were being intercepted and movements were ended almost at their inception by the Fusilier halves.

Grindley, who even during the stress of the Recreio opening attack had acquitted himself well, came to the fore with some good distributive work which proved the turn of the tide, Keneghan supporting in admirable fashion to help both in attack and defence.

Always dangerous from the kick-off, the Recreio's opening movement was faultless and it was only a great effort by Keneghan that B. Gosano's drive was deflected over the cross-bar.

The Recreio opened their scoring from a corner-kick when B. Gosano netted neatly with a header.

Two Quick Goals

Talbot then sent in a grounder through a screen of players and Marques went full-length to save, but Dennis, following up completed the work by sending the ball into the net over the prostrate Marques for the equaliser.

From this period the Fusiliers showed signs of great improvement, and swinging the ball down-field without any waste of time found an opening for Talbot to beat Marques and give the Fusiliers the lead.

The Recreio had a spell of the play following Bowen's failure to convert a penalty, and two drives from B. Gosano only just failed to reach their objective.

The attack was not long-lived, however, for the Fusiliers went away once more and from a free-kick awarded inside the penalty-area, Grindley was given possession to send them further ahead.

Gosano Misses Penalty

Both teams continued energetically after the interval and each goal had its share of the attack, but held its own for a long time.

The second penalty awarded the Recreio, was taken by A. V. Gosano—a low hard drive to the left of Rowlands but he deflected it round the post.

Away on the attack once again, the Fusiliers forced a corner, and a brilliant header by Grindley placed the Fusiliers further in the lead.

The final goal, came from B. Gosano whose drive was deflected in by Grindley in an endeavour to clear.

Fusiliers—Rowlands; Wheeler, Hastings; Grindley, Keneghan, Ellis; Hughes, Harrison, Dennis, Talbot, Roberts.

Recreio—E. Marques; Silva-Netto, Bowen; Delgado, Beltrao, V. Marques; Castilho, B. Gosano, A. V. Gosano, Gomes and Alves.

With the scores at 4-0 in favour of the U.S.R.C. pair, Rurnjahn made a vain attempt to retrieve the position, but, despite brilliant drives down the centre of the court which left Goldman and his partner standing, Mrs. Chiu threw away the net by over-lobbing.

This is Goldman's third victory in the event and Miss Hancock's first

LINCOLNS TOO GOOD FOR EASTERN

Clever Forwards Riddle Weak Defence

WILDY OUTSTANDING

On the Club ground yesterday, the Lincoln had no difficulty in overcoming the Eastern in their Second Division match, winning by 4 goals to 1.

Toyno, on the left wing, made many clever runs, and was very hard to stop. Apart from scoring the first goal, he went near on many occasions. McGuinness worked hard in bringing the ball forward, and had good support from Rush and Turner. Clayton displayed speed and accuracy in his centre, and completed an effective forward line.

Eastern's defence was weak, and, with the exception of Ng Chu-lam, who was the only player to prove a serious obstacle to the Lincoln forwards, were rarely able to stop the quick moves of McGuinness and his partners. Da Silva, in goal, was very shaky.

The halves worked well, and often succeeded in sending their forwards away, but their tackling was slow and timid. Chan Yau-fat, in the centre, stood out for his good head-work, and distributed the ball to his wings well.

Individual Movements

The forwards could seldom get together, but some good individual movements were seen. Ching Sui-hong, on the left wing, was fast and centred well, while Sing Ling-shing and Wong Sui-tung missed good chances, after cleverly beating the defence and reaching the goal-arena.

The first goal came early, Toyno making a brilliant run to culminate it with an unstoppable shot. The Lincoln went further ahead when Rush intercepted a pass and broke through on his own to place the ball past Da Silva. The remaining first half exchanges were fairly even, with the soldiers faster on the ball. Just before the interval, Wildy gave Turner a splendid overhead pass, and the centre-forward went right through the defence to place the Lincoln three goals ahead.

This Lincoln set up a determined attack upon the resumption, and Toyno and McGuinness were prominent in many good moves. McGuinness once went half the length of the field, beating man after man, only to lose control of a difficult ball just in front of goal. A penalty awarded for a foul on Toyno, was easily converted by Dobbs.

Taylor's Good Save

Eastern endeavoured to reduce the score, and made one or two breakaways, but the Lincoln defence was always on top. Once Wong sent in a splendid shot from 20 yards, which brought Taylor full length to effect a good save, and from the resultant corner, Eastern scored their only point, through Kwok Ying-wai, who scrambled the ball past Taylor. Eastern enjoyed much more of the game after this success, but could not reduce their deficit, and the game concluded with the Lincoln pressing home their advantage.

Lincoln—Taylor; Dobbs, Coleclough, Key, Wildy, Ibbett; Clayton, Rush, Turner, McGuinness and Toyno.

Eastern—Da Silva; Lai Ting-chai, Ng Chu-lam; Lau Kim-fai, Chan Yau-fat, Ng Ying-king; Fung Chai-po, Sing Ling-shing, Kwok Ying-wai, Wong Sui-tung and Ching Sui-hong.

From the beginning of the game the C.B.A. took up the offensive and pressed, fully testing the Saint's defence, which answered well. The forwards put in shot after shot but were unable to score until late in the first half when Miss Smith broke through.

It was not until 10 minutes before the end that Miss M. Woolley got in a well placed shot from the edge of the circle to score the equaliser.

C.B.A.—S. Best; F. Walker and P. Woolley; M. Bryson, E. Beavis and G. MacMillan; R. Blackmore, M. Smith, E. Woolley, N. Whitley and D. Hunt.

Saints—G. White and J. J. Jorge; P. Everett, J. Wong and I. Woolley; F. Wong, I. Gittins, N. Woolley, P. Gittins and M. Churn.

championship title.

This is how they reached the final:

Goldman and Miss Hancock: beat Lee Wai Tong and Miss Tano.

beat Capt. Mannors and Mrs. Grimble.

Rurnjahn and Mrs. Chiu: beat Mr. and Mrs. Ho Ka Lau.

beat Mr. and Mrs. Kayll.

EAST LANCES BEAT UNIVERSITY

Goalkeeper Twists Knee Saving

TWO GOALS FOR GRIFFIN

The East Lanes met with little opposition at Caroline Hill yesterday and won a very one-sided game against the University in their Second Division encounter by two goals to nil.

Ling, the University goal keeper played a smart game and he was admirably supported by the full backs, Aug and Lee, the latter displaying a particularly keen sense of judgment when the emergency arose. Simmonds also played very well and did much to keep the soldiers out.

The East Lanes opened the scoring after 15 minutes when Griffin, the outside-left, took a long pass from Evans to beat Ling all ends up. Continuous attacks by the soldiers were witnessed, but there was no further score by the half time.

Soon after the re-commencement the University came into the limelight, the forwards carrying out a series of dangerous raids which considerably worried the soldiers' defence. An angle-shot from the wing by Y. Tang brought Harman worth out of goal, and in his attempt to save, he fell, twisting his knee. Y. Tang, facing an open goal, however, shot wide.

The soldiers increased their lead 10 minutes from time when Evans again sent a long pass out to Griffin who scored.

East Lanes—Harmsworth; Ashurst, Steel; Bowley, Ecezerley, Hardy, Johnson, Evans, Walkden, Riddings and Griffin.

University—Ling; Aug, Lee; Goco, Simmonds, Gavachanka; Young, Goco, Y. Tang, H. Tang and Toa.

but Hallowell and Mill, the Cornwall backs, proved themselves a stout pair, managing to save several almost certain goals.

A few minutes before the end of the first half Daley scored the military team's only goal after receiving a quick pass from Bowler.

Positional Changes

In the second half the Corps made a few positional changes, Daley being transferred to right-back and Jeffers to inside-right. These changes seemed to weaken their entire team for the Cornwall kept their custodian Butters, and both their backs busy until the conclusion of the game.

Gillard, the Cornwall's left-winger, equalised soon after the start of the second half, and this was soon followed by another goal, from Leggett. The Cornwall's third goal was scored by Hulme.

Mr. C. Brown and Gunner, Aldridge refereed the game and the teams were:

R.A.S.C.—Sgt. Butters; Sgt. Jeffers and L/C Grant; Sgt. Cubitt, Sgt. Ransom and L/C Meeker; Cpl. Bowler, Sm. Daley, Sgt. Tittle, L/C Toogood and L/C Jeffers.

H.M.S. Cornwall—Ck. Wilson; Lt. Mill and A. B. Hallowell; St. Lovegrove, P. O. Barseley and St. Bicknell; A. B. Headman, A. B. Annetts, A. B. Leggett, A. B. Hulme and A. B. Gillard.

POOR ARMY HOCKEY

Addis And Senior Outstanding

In the Army Hockey trial match on the U.S.R.C. ground yesterday the White's team defeated the Colours' by 5 goals to 4, after being 3 goals to 2 down in the first half.

The outstanding features of the game were the magnificent displays given by Addis, the Colours' inside-right, and Senior, the leader of the White's, the latter recorded the "hat-trick" in the second half.

The game on the whole was very scrappy for an Army trial, this being due to the fact that many of the leading players were absent.

The scorers for the Colours were: Addis, Chorizan Singh, and Aya Singh (2), while Senior (4) and Kaur Singh netted the White's goals.

The teams were:—

Whites—Pto. Hollingsworth (Lines); Sep. Khan Bahadur (Punjab) and Lt. Laine (9th A. Bal.); Gnr. Bechan Singh (H.K.S.R.A.), Nk. Dulla Singh (Punjab) and L/Nk. Alaf Dha (Punjab); Lt. Robinson (E. Lanes), Gnr. Rishan Singh (R.A.), W. O. Senior (R.A.S.C.), L/Nk. Kartar Singh (Punjab) and L/Nk. Lal Singh (Punjab).

Colours—Gnr. Sarwan Singh (H.K.S.R.A.); Cpl. Bently (Lines) and Cpl. Clarke (R.A.); L/Dr. Cartor (R.A.); Spr. Brown (R.E.) and Gnr. Chasjan Singh (H.K.S.R.A.).

BREACH OF CONTRACT

FAMOUS BABIES NOT TO BE ON VIEW AT CHICAGO FAIR

RISK OF "CERTAIN DEATH"

SENSATIONAL ACTION BY IVAN SPEAR

CHICAGO JOURNALS SUPPORT THE DEFENDANTS

Chicago, Yesterday.

As a sequel to the refusal of the Canadian Government to allow the famous "Dionne quintuplets" to appear at the World's Fair, Chicago, owing to the risk of "certain death," a U.S.$1,000,000 suit for breach of contract was filed to-day by Ivan Spear, head of the "Century of Progress" section of the Exhibition.

The defendants in the action, which will be heard in the United States District Court, are Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, the parents of the quintuplets, and Dr. Dafeo, who has treated them throughout, has been appointed their guardian by Canadian Government officials.

Several Chicago newspapers have objected to the proposal to exhibit the infants.—Reuter.

Miss J. Lakeman, the C.B.S. leader, opened the scoring five minutes after the start. Half-time found the schoolgirls still pressing.

After the interval the students immediately showed signs of cracking up, and Miss Fowler netted the "Ys" first goal with a ground shot from the edge of the circle. The next attack, made mainly by Miss Brown and Miss Fowler, had the same result, Miss Fowler again netting.

Penalty Bully

The schoolgirls then rallied and took the ball down to the goalmouth, where they were awarded a penalty bully, when Miss. George pushed the ball with her hand from a shot from Miss J. Lakeman.

After a thrilling tussle for possession Miss Lakeman gathered and shot wide of an open goal!

This seemed to upset the schoolgirls and they were again forced to take up the defensive. In one of the "Ys" attacks Miss P. McCaw netted from short range, and a little later Miss Brown had hard luck when her shot hit the cross-bar and rebounded into play!

With about 10 minutes to play Harris (R.A.); Col. Sgt. Reeks (Lines); Sign. May (Signals), Aya Singh (H.K.S.R.A.); Sig. Addis (Signals) and Gnr. Chasjan Singh (H.K.S.R.A.).

TO-DAY'S HOCKEY AT MACAO

Y.M.C.A. FIELDING STRONG SIDE

MOELLER WILL BE DANGEROUS

Fielding one of their strongest eleven for several seasons, the European Y.M.C.A. expect to record their second hockey win over Macao when the two teams clash this afternoon at Macao in their ninth annual encounter.

The Y.M.C.A. have made several changes from last year's team and are much improved at forward, Moeller, a newcomer at inside-left, being one of the best forwards the "Ys" have had for the last two seasons.

G. H. and S. Fowler, on the right-wing, will be very dangerous, but if the latter is to get through at all he must be much quicker than usual, for Lino Ferreira and Cardoso are a useful combination on the left flank.

"Y" Defence Problem

Moeller will not be given too easy a time, with Alrosa and Rodrigues, the brilliant Macao half and back, respectively, marking him.

Self is equal to the task of keeping up with any of the fast Macao forwards, but I very much doubt whether Sommer will be able to withstand the pace of the opposing attack.

Mr. G. T. Palmer will travel with the team as their referee and the teams are:

Macao—Alameda; J. Rodrigues and M. Cardoso; A. Alrosa, J. Ferreira and Lino Ferreira; P. Nolasco, L. Costa, F. Ramalho, H. Nolasco and A. Angelo.

Y.M.C.A.—F. Fowler; E. E. Salk and G. Sommer; J. Farmer, D. McLehlan and R. A. Bates; S. Fowler, R. Fowler, W. J. Brown, H. Moeller and T. J. Price (Captain).

A CHINESE OPERA

A Chinese grave stands on the edge of a wood. Wine is offered before it. Music speaks the rhythmic longing of nature, gently persistent; the clang of stones on rocks, the almost-ripple of foam. The Turkoman general appears, travelling from the distance on a black horse. He alights and sings at her grave. As he sings his attitude is tense; the music vibrates his sorrow. He dies.

The pavilion is sorrowful. The candles flicker. The Emperor is alone. He falls asleep. The moon grows big, the entrance slides back, and Yang Kuei-fel appears. She comes up the pavilion singing, lovingly enough to have appeared from any heaven. The Emperor goes to meet her. There is grace of tones, grace of hands and eyes.

"The spring wind softly sweeps the balustrade, And the dewdrops glisten thickly."

Great Acting

This play was acted by Ma Sze-chum at the local Tai Ping Theatre. Very few Europeans visit the Chinese theatre, though in Hong Kong we have something far beyond the ordinary in Ma Sze-chum's acting. He is a well-known and exceptionally clever actor who spends most of his time here. In this particular play he took the part of the Emperor who was known as China's illustrious monarch, while Tam Lan-hing, always his leading lady, created Yang Kuei-fel anew. There is something very lovely in the traditional Chinese opera when it is presented by these two.

"But..." began Terbut.
"Don't you see," said Jorkens, "that it proved my point, that the black bows on the shoes should be worn on the collar? Of course some more of the swine had raided my camp; and they had brought the whole outfit in. I soon had hold of that photograph, and it did more than my limited knowledge of Dinka talk could do."
"And then I was taking off their ties and cutting them all in half, and tying the halves round their feet with a bit of a bow, just where their toes joined on, and I was only just able to make one, and the bows of their shoes I fastened on to their collar studs, doing it all quickly and boldly, as though I did it every day of my life, and handing each man the spare bow, to wear on Sundays. And then I walked away, and my two Arabs came with me."
"You walked away?" said Terbut.
"Yes," said Jorkens, "and that was the last I saw of them."
"Why didn't they catch you again?" he asked.
"Couldn't walk fast enough," said Jorkens.
"Why didn't they run?" persisted Terbut.
But he got no change out of Jorkens. "You try to run," he said, "with the ends of your shoes tied round with evening ties. The ties will come off. And they daren't do anything without their evening dress. Lots of people are like that. If it comes to that, you were once invited to dine at the Mansion House."
"I was," said Terbut, full of dignity.
"And I doubt if you'd have dared to go in any kit but the right one," "Well..." said Terbut.
"Exactly," said Jorkens. "Turtle or man, it's all the same."
And the talk degenerated into a discussion as to what was the proper wear for a variety of meals and occasions.
THE END.

MYSTERY RACE IN CANADA

Believed To Be Forebears Of Eskimos

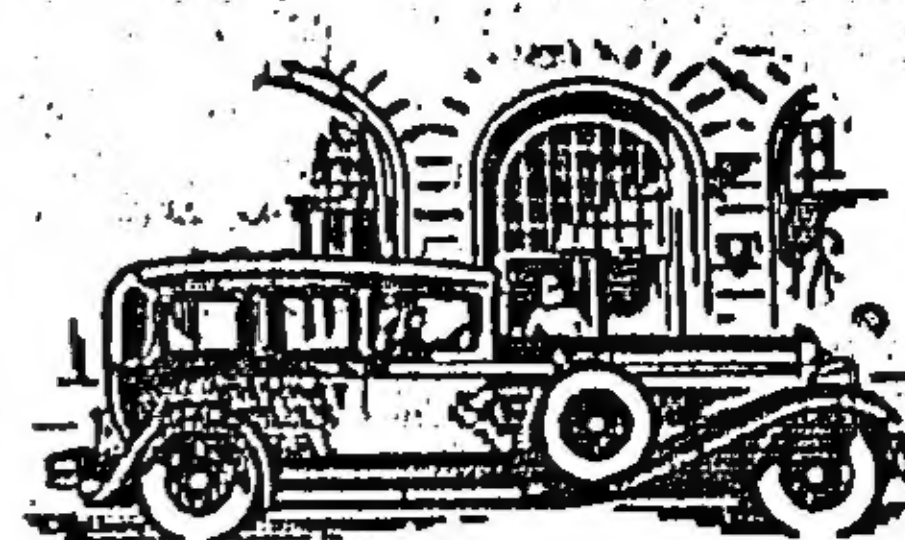

CLAM EATING TRIBESMEN

Skeletons, revealing the existence of a clam-eating "mystery" race who inhabited the West Coast of Canada some 2000 years ago, have been discovered at the delta of the River Fraser near here.

The skeletons have "long heads," which leads Professor Charles Hill-Tout, a Vancouver anthropologist, to believe that they were the forebears of the Eskimos.

On the other hand, Mr. T. P. O. Menzies, Curator of the Vancouver City Museum, contends that reconstruction of the skulls gives both Chinese and Negroid types, and he thinks their origin may never be solved.

The "mystery" men left behind them refuse heaps covering many acres and 18ft. deep. The heaps consisted of piles of clam shells, underneath which were found skulls and prehistoric implements. In one small area 80 skulls were discovered.

MOTORING NOTES - -

STREAMLINING Great Deal In Its Favour

From the pocket point of view there is much to be said for streamlining. It is a proved fact that a great part of the effective engine power of a car is used up in overcoming air resistance. Above 30 m.p.h. air resistance is formidable as a consumer of power. A more scientific body means more power available for acceleration, speed and hill climbing, less stress on the engine for a stated speed, and, therefore a longer working life, and, with a smaller call for power output, a consequent lower petrol consumption.

INEFFECTIVE FINES ON MOTORISTS

Judge's Advice To Magistrates

CARELESS DRIVERS SHOULD BE SUSPENDED

Advice on how to treat motorists who disregarded fines was given by Mr. Justice Charles when addressing magistrates at Nottinghamshire Assizes recently.

He said that a great many people who drove motor-cars did not care at all about being fined £5 or £10. They paid the fines and drove away from the Court perhaps at a higher speed than they had ever driven before.

But there was a very effective method provided by the Road Traffic Act of 1934, he said, whereby magistrates could cause motorists to be more diligent and to repent of what they had done by making it impossible for them to drive for some considerable time.

LATEST MOTOR-CAR SAFETY-FIRST

British Invention Tested

A noteworthy motor-car, "safety first" invention is being tested out by one of Britain's most important motor manufacturers. The managing director of the firm saw a car being driven up a hill at some fifteen miles an hour. Suddenly the driver sprang from the driving seat, ran to the front of the car, and was struck by the bumper. He was not run over—the car stopped. The manufacturer, realising the importance of the invention, went to be run over by this queer car. Tests were made at all speeds, but so soon as anything touched the front of the car the brakes were applied and the engine stopped. It is likely that the invention will be made a standard fitting on all cars of one make in the near future. Negotiations for its manufacture are now progressing.

ANTI-DAZZLE

90 Per Cent. Assist Spirit Of Road

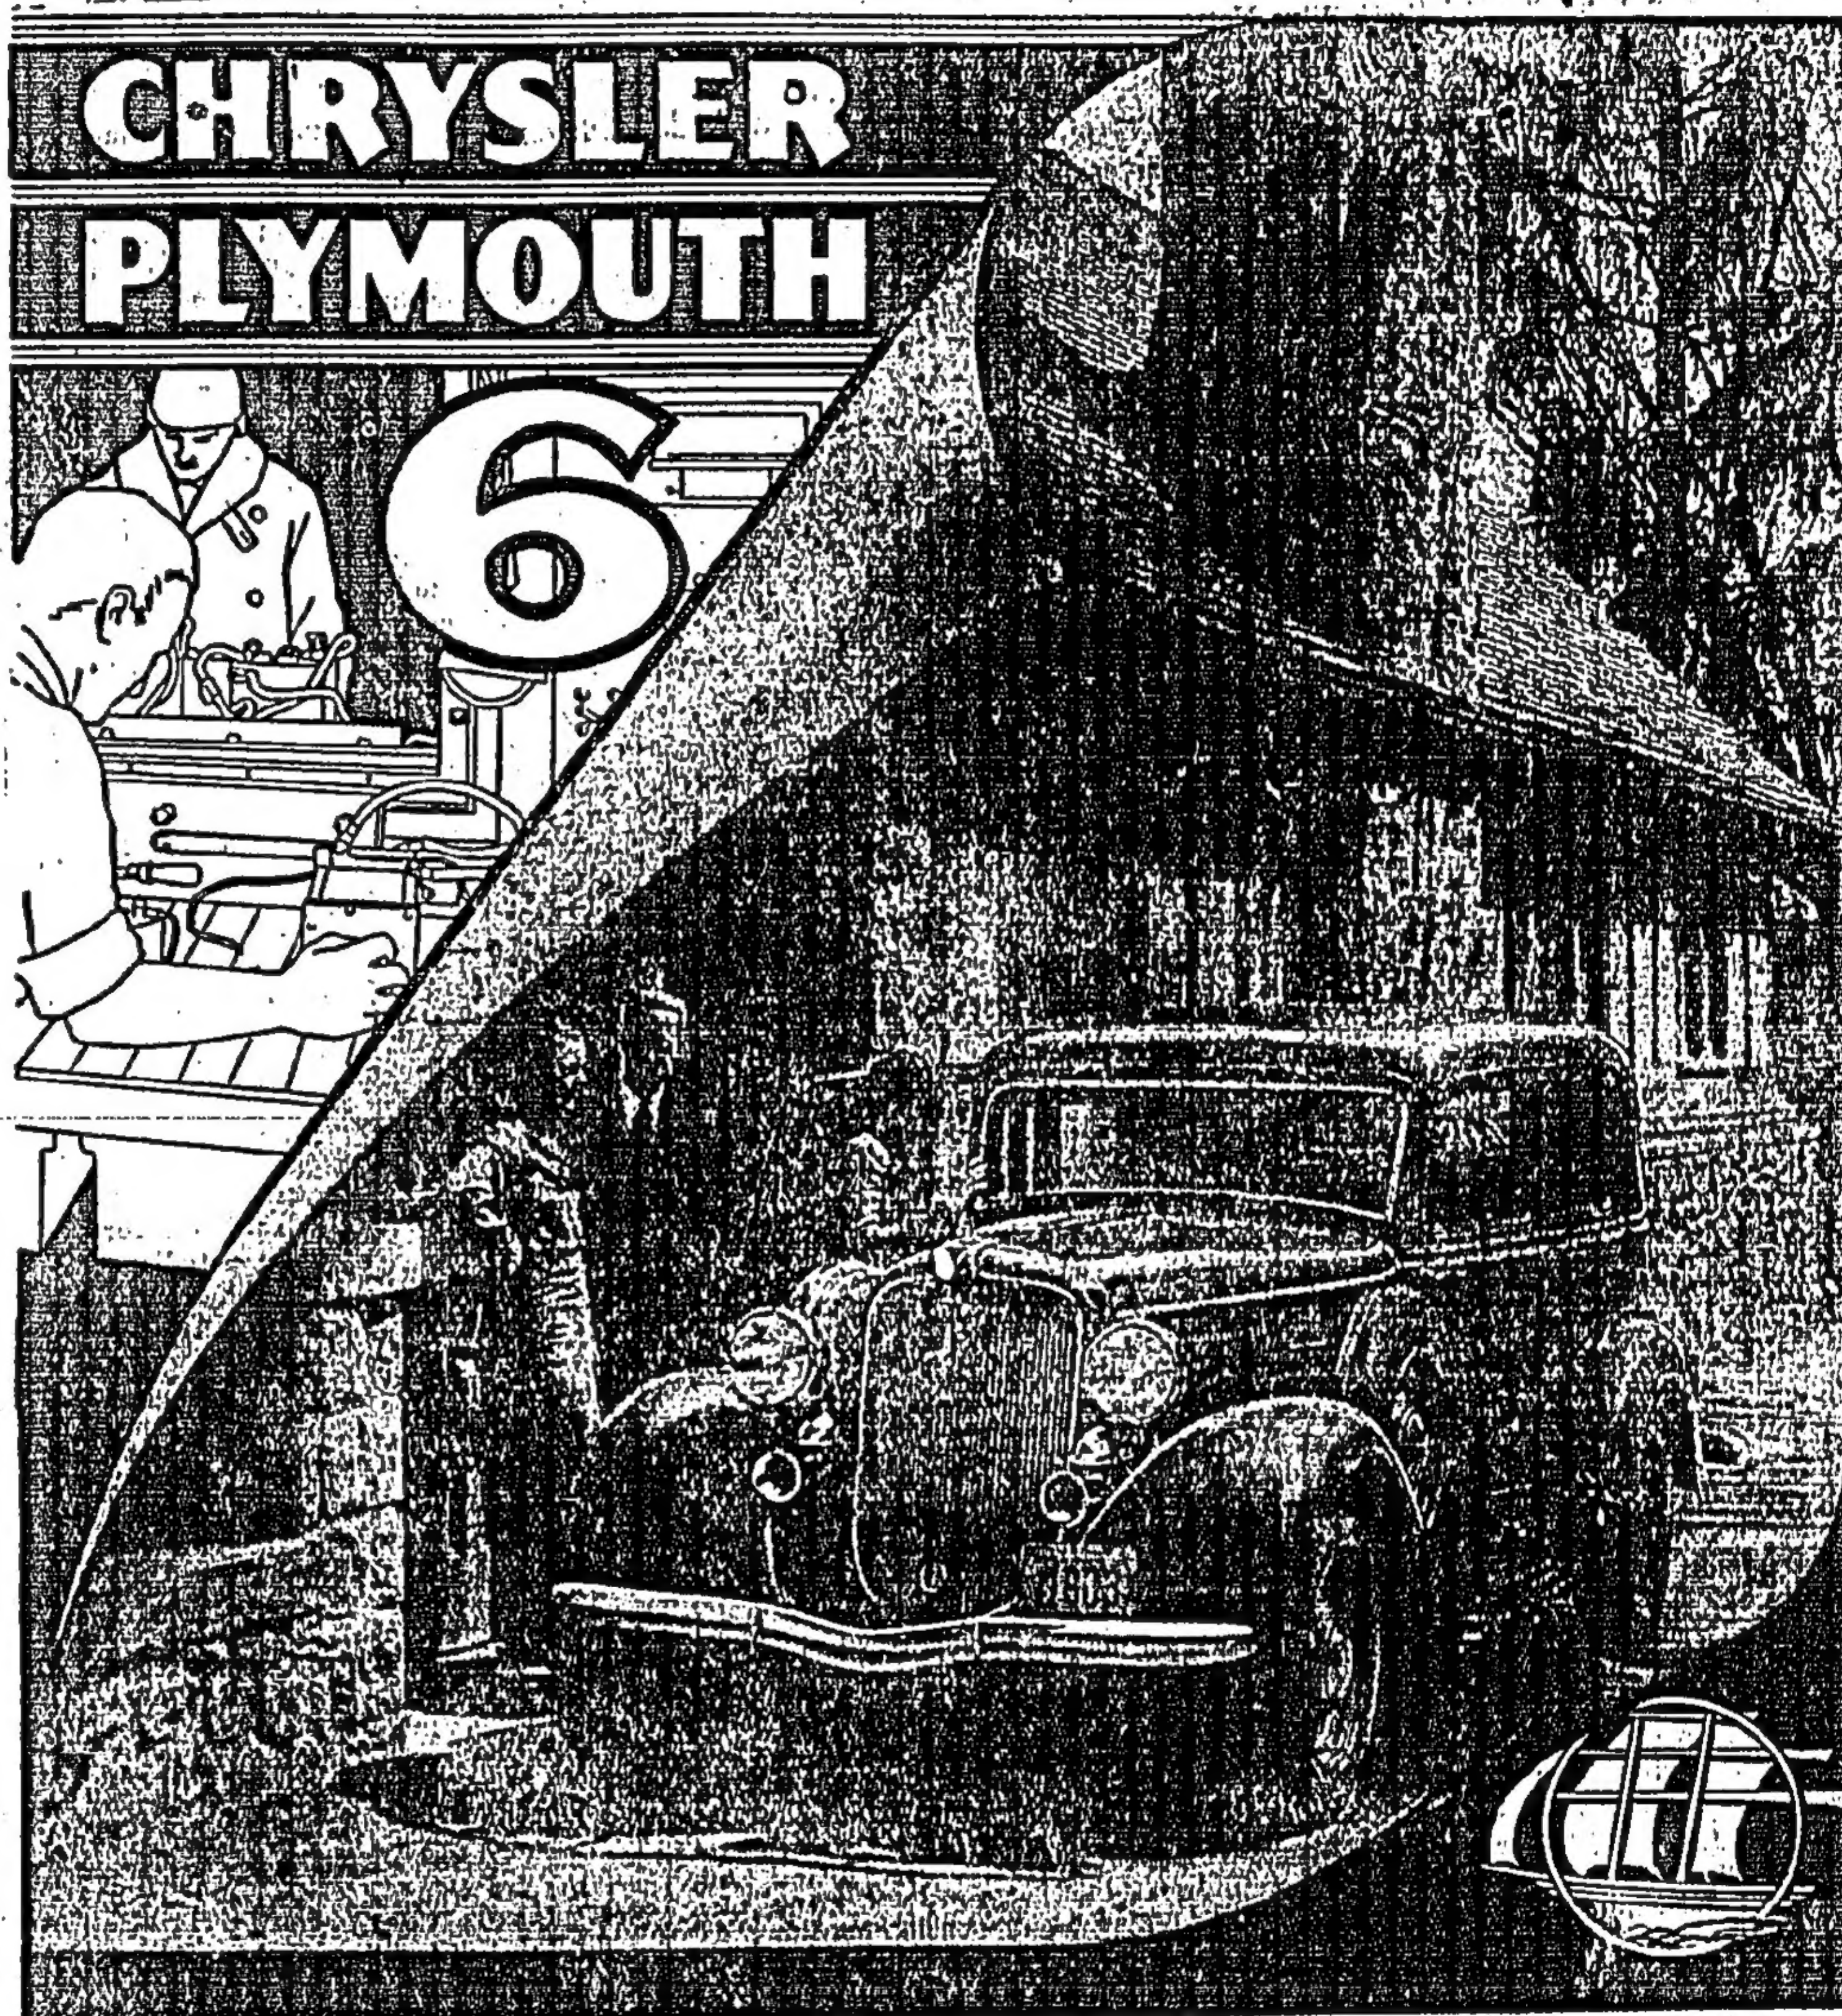

Nearly 90 per cent. of drivers make some efforts by night to avoid dazzling occupants of other vehicles. This fact is revealed by a census, taken over a period of a week during November, by the Automobile Association.

Exactly 50 per cent. of all vehicles observed either had the outside headlight switched off with the nearside light dipped or dimmed, or had both headlights switched off, dipped, or dimmed. The outside headlight was switched off leaving the nearside headlight unaffected by 29 per cent. of drivers; while nine per cent. adopted the almost useless method of switching off the nearside headlight only.

REGIONAL APPRAISER

All used cars offered in part payment for new cars in Germany must be appraised by a regional appraiser, who acts in the interest of both manufacturers and dealers.

More than 800,000 automobiles radio sets were installed in 1933.

THREW WIFE OUT OF WINDOW

Woman Victim Of Drunkard

Berlin.
A man of Horsthausen has been arrested and charged with a savage attack on his wife.

It is alleged that he came home drunk and tried to throw his wife and children downstairs. His wife's cries for help enraged him and he picked her up and threw her out of a second floor window.
She sustained terrible injuries and lies in hospital in a grave condition.

SENT HIMSELF BY CRATE

Rough Handling Leads To Discovery

When porters at the Frankfurt goods station were conveying a heavy crate to a train they heard loud groans and many curses. They opened the box and found a man in it.

He had put heavy stones in the box which he intended to exchange for wares when safely in a goods wagon, but these had fallen on to his head when the box was suddenly rolled over.

The man had once before tried the same trick, placing himself in a box labelled "Delicate Palm-Don't Put On End."

MOSCOW'S FILM FESTIVAL

15th Anniversary This Year

Moscow is planning a World
Moving Picture Festival for 1935, to celebrate the 15th anniversary of the formation of the Soviet film industry.

Representatives of the most important film companies in Europe and America are being invited to take part, and individual "masters of the cinema art" will be asked to come to Moscow.

Soviet "cultural" and propaganda films will have pride of place at the festival, but an open competition for films of all nations will be held and prizes will be awarded for those judged the best.

$50,000 FOR PICTURE

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation is reputed to pay him $50,000 cash for one picture a year, plus a percentage of the gross takings.

How much extra this percentage must bring him is indicated by the fact that in the British Isles alone four of his recent pictures are credited with earnings of over £600,000.

The personal appearance tours which he makes from time to time are particularly remunerative. A recent appearance in Brooklyn brought him nearly $2,500 in a single week.

WARE SINGLETONS IN CONTRACT

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. Beasley)
DISASTERS at Contract Bridge, due to the unexpected appearance of a singleton of a suit or suits in one or the other of the opponents'
hands, are of fairly frequently occurrence.

On many occasions it is not easy to foresee the probable distribution of suits. Nevertheless a mental review of the bidding by the opponents will probably give you some information as to their suit holdings.
However, if there has been no competitive bidding to aid you, it is possible that the opening lead may give you some sort of indication to the possible distribution of at least one of the suits.

Many players express some surprise when they find that the second round of a suit is trumped.
They probably do not recognise the fact that it is not at all improbable that one hand of the four in every deal contains a singleton in one suit or the other.

There are six patterns of hands, each one of which contains a singleton, and one of these will probably appear about 27 times in every hundred hands. Some of them will appear more frequently than the others.

Here are the patterns to which I refer and their relative frequency:

5	4	3	1	13%
6	4	2	1	5%
6	3	3	1	3%
5	5	2	1	3%
4	4	4	1	3%

Total 27%

If the above facts are duly recognised, no player should be surprised when he finds that one of the four hands contains a singleton, and in planning the play of a hand, he must fully appreciate the risk he runs if he leaves this probability out of his calculations.

The following hand, which was played in a recent duplicate tournament, produced some extraordinary results, due entirely to the fact that the declarer in some cases did not legislate for the possibility of the opponents' hands containing the elusive singleton.

At one table the declarer made only 8 tricks; at a second table 10,
and at a third table, a small Slam.

Here is the hand:—

North:—
S.—A 10 2
H.—A J 10
D.—7 2
C.—Q 9 8 5 2
West:—
S.—Q 3
H.—8
D.—J 10 9 8 5 4
C.—A J 6 3
South:—

EDDIE CANTOR'S HUGE INCOME

Staggering Figures
Revealed

Eddie Cantor, who arrived in London from Paris recently and who broadcasted the following night, has for a number of years enjoyed the reputation of being the highest-paid public entertainer in the world.

His yearly income is impossible to compute, but, including his revenue from film work, broadcasting, gramophone records, the endorsement of advertised products and personal tours, the total is staggering.

Just before sailing for Europe,
for instance, he had completed a 20-week broadcasting contract for a coffee company, for which he received £1,600 for one broadcast a week.

The final contract was 4 Spades by South. East and West had had no opportunity of joining in the bidding, so that no information was available to indicate the distribution of the opponents' hands.

He Overlooked It
The opening lead was the Jack of Diamonds by West. At one table the declarer took the first trick with the Queen of Diamonds and led out the Ace. He then led a Heart and sneaked the Jack. East took this trick with the Queen and returned his singleton Club, which West won with the Ace. West then returned the Club and a cross-ruff in Hearts and Clubs was established.

The declarer had overlooked the possibility of finding a singleton in these two suits, with the result that he incurred a two-trick penalty.

If your contract is only four of a major suit, it is advisable to formulate some safe plan to collect your ten necessary tricks. Do not embark in a plan which may either

(a) produce over-tricks, or
(b) lead to a disaster if you find singletons in the opponents'
hands, and your winning cards
eventually trumped.

A safe method of playing the above hand is to take the first Diamond trick and then lead a Spade up to dummy's Ace; then return another Spade, and sneeze
the Knave if you wish. Any lead that West can now make would produce the necessary ten tricks for South.

As a matter of fact, if the Ace and King of trumps are led out on the third and fourth tricks, a small Slam can be made, if the necessary finesse in the Club suit is taken the right way.

If anyone would care to verify the above figures with reference to the frequency of hands which contain singletons, a few minutes will suffice to carry out a test with twenty deals.

The information thus obtained will, I feel confident, prove of practical value.
